Nixon to Profs: Have Backbone

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, after a month of silence on mounting campus disorders, says college administrators must "have the backbone to stand up" against student violence "if free education is to survive in the United States."

In a speech Tuesday to the 57th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, the President said those who run America's colleges and universities "must recognize that there can be no compromise with lawlessness and no surrender to force."

Nixon's strong statement was unexpected. His speech to the business group had been billed as only "informal remarks."

Only twice since taking office had there been any previous Nixon pronouncements on the tide of student disorders that have swept the nation's campuses, including such prestigious schools as Harvard and Cornell universities.

The White House Feb. 24 made public a letter in which Nixon praised a "get-tough" policy announced by The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University. Hesburgh pledged prompt expulsion of students who disrupt the operation of the university.

March 22, the President issued a statement warning of "cultural calamity" if violent demonstrations persisted. He said the educational community—not the federal government—must cope with the problem.

Guardsmen and police rout gun-toting black militants from buildings at Voorhees College, Denmark, S.C. Story Page 5.

Nixon spoke Tuesday with much the same tone as in the March statement, but with considerably more forceful language which brought repeated applause from the audience.

While praising the younger generation and saying that "We do not want government control of our great educational institutions," Nixon said:

"When we find situations in numbers of colleges and universities which reach the point where students in the name of dissent and in the name of change terrorize other students and faculty members, when they rifle files, when they engage in violence, when they carry guns and knives in the classrooms, then I say it is time for faculties, boards of trustees and school administrators to have the backbone to stand up against this kind of situation."

He declared that the situation at this time required a statement from the President.

"... I think all of those who have a responsibility for providing educational leadership must recognize that there can be no compromise with lawlessness and no surrender to force if free education is to survive in the United States of America," Nixon said.

Asserting that students today are the best educated ever, and more deeply motivated, Nixon said, "We may not agree with them, but they do care."

He said dissent can be a very healthy force.

"I think that young people, students, are correct in asking that they have a voice; a voice in determining what the courses should be, a voice in determining what the rules should be," Nixon said. "But then I say that while they should have a voice, under no circumstances should they be given control of the colleges and universities."

Nixon summarized what he described as opinions "that are my own" and subject to challenge.

A Working Program for Prisoners

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
A plan which would release certain Ulster County prisoners from confinement and allow them to accept employment, take vocational training or attend school, will be presented to the County Legislature May 8 by Minority Leader Roger Mabie. The resolution was filed today.

A law which would permit Sheriff William B. Martin to establish a work release program for the county of Ulster was approved by the governor during the past year and is now in effect. It would need approval of the local legislature before implementation.

The program provides sentenced prisoners with the privilege of leaving confinement to be gainfully employed and in the case of female prisoners, it provides for release during necessary and reasonable hours to care for her family.

The plan may include employment in a county other than Ulster.

Earnings under this program are to be deposited in a trust account with the sheriff and the trust fund may also be charged with the county cost of the prisoner's food, lodging, clothing, traveling and other expenses.

Special

Implementation of the program would include the establishment of a local committee to be known as a "work release committee" of six persons appointed by the sheriff which would periodically review applications for work release already submitted to the sheriff.

In the selection of prisoners for participation, the local committee would give strong consideration to excluding types of prisoners whose past history indicates definite trends or patterns of behavior that would make their success in such a program extremely doubtful. Also those who endanger free society such as sex offenders, drug addicts, alcoholics, escapees or runaways. Also, individuals convicted of crimes of an assaultive nature, AWOL's from military service and prisoners with warrants or detainers.

In order to assure the availability of information for use by the sheriff the committing court would be required to send a copy of the probation report to the sheriff for all prisoners committed or sentenced—it would therefore be mandatory that before any prisoner is approved for work release, a study of the probation material be made to ascertain the prisoner's social and legal (Continued on Page 14, Col. 5)

Dumping Powers Thwarted

KINGSTON
The New York State Senate voted Tuesday night to strip the State Pure Waters Authority of its autonomous powers and return home rule and local control of sanitary landfill. The vote was 45 to 5.

The Assembly passed a similar measure unanimously last week.

For Sen. Jay P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, who drafted the bills, the victory is one of great magnitude because of its long range effect on both Ulster and Dutchess Counties which are being considered as depositories for Westchester County's garbage.

Signature Needed
Only the governor's signature is needed now to make the new amendment a law.

The Pure Waters Authority, under existing law, has the right of condemnation and can override local engineering, planning and designing in order to establish sanitary landfill operations.

Recently through the efforts of County Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf, it was revealed by The Freeman that the PWA was considering establishing a sanitary landfill operation in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Moving quickly, Bell met with the authority's director of solid wastes, Arthur Handley at Albany to gain further insight into the authority's intended operations in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Following a meeting with Ulster County Legislator Chairman Peter J. Savago and Melvin Mone, chairman of the Public Health Committee, Bell prepared and authored legislation to return home rule and local control.

Bell's amendment provides that the PWA may not establish sanitary landfill operations without first securing approval from a local legislative body wherein the authority desires to establish a landfill facility.

Sen. Rolison sponsored similar legislation in the State Senate.

Exerted Pressure
Both Bell and Rolison report that as soon as the Assembly passed the measure, the Pure Waters Authority representatives and lobbyists began to exert extreme pressure in the Senate. Sen. Rolison presented his case on the Senate floor and the measure was passed.

Bell commenting on the victories said he was "extremely pleased the amendment passed both the Assembly and the Senate. I have long been an advocate of home rule and community control."

Paying tribute to Sen. Rolison, Bell added, "I moved the bill quickly in the Assembly before opposition could effectively organize. However Rolison had to carry the fight in the Senate against the lobbyists from the Pure Waters Authority."

"Success is made up of ability, hard work and perseverance. Sen. Rolison has demonstrated he has them all in abundance."

Sen. Rolison, also commenting on the passage said that "From a local point of view it is the most important bill that I have sponsored with Bell. It upholds the overriding concept of home rule and protects the rights of individuals to decide their own destiny."

As it is now, the Pure Waters Authority is concerned specifically with setting up regional landfill operations to take care of wastes collected in metropolitan areas such as Albany, New York, Buffalo and Syracuse.

It employed the engineering firm of Metcalf and Eddy to conduct a survey of the Mid-Hudson Valley where 100 potential sites were considered in Ulster, Dutchess, Greene, Columbia, Putnam and Westchester Counties.

Meanwhile, Ulster County itself has commissioned a study of possible sanitary landfill sites to accommodate its own solid wastes which are now being taken care of on a town basis.

WAR RESCUE—From tree top level, a medic hangs onto the skid of a helicopter as he grabs a wounded U.S. soldier being hoisted up by a winch 60 miles north of Saigon. The trees in the area were too dense for the helicopter to land and the wounded man had to be lifted up by a winch. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

A Key Cong Shift at Paris-- 'Ready for Talk With Others'

PARIS (UPI)—The Viet Cong announced today it is ready for "discussions with the other parties" to get the Vietnam peace talks moving again.

Until now the Viet Cong has refused to hold side talks with the South Vietnamese government. The Allies had called that refusal a major stumbling block to peace.

"The delegation of the South Vietnam National Front for Liberation (NLF) is ready to enter into discussions with the other parties so as to make the conference move forward," said Tan Bui Kiem of the Viet Cong. The Liberation Front is the Viet Cong's political arm.

Today's statement apparently signalled a major shift in the Communists' policy. Previously the Viet Cong had only recognized the United States as the single competent party with which to discuss its program for ending the war.

The Americans, however, had repeatedly rebuffed the Viet Cong's call for bilateral negotiations and contended that all important decisions involving peace must have the approval of the Saigon government.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu unexpectedly made an offer of direct Saigon-Viet Cong negotiations last month.

The Viet Cong's initial reaction was to denounce it as a maneuver by the Nixon administration to boost the prestige of Thieu's "puppet" regime. The North Vietnamese entered the talks promising to "analyze the first 100 days of the Nixon administration to see exactly what it has done toward the solution of the Vietnam problem."

That remark by Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's No. 1 negotiator, indicated another attack by the Communists on the U. S. position. In recent meetings the North Vietnamese have accused President Nixon of escalating the war.

Meanwhile in Vietnam Allied forces killed 132 Communists in battles near the Cambodian border and the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) military spokesmen said today. U.S. tanks and infantrymen smashed their way through a Communist bunker complex to account for 47 of the dead.

Another 85 North Vietnamese troops were killed by South Vietnamese infantrymen in two clashes two miles south of the DMZ separating the two Vietnams and northwest of the town of Cam Lo, military spokesmen said.

In Saigon, a national police force suffered wounds early today when terrorists hurled a 10-pound plastic bomb at City Hall. It caused minor damage to the building.

A U.S. tank column roared into a Communist bunker complex seven miles south of the Cambodian border Tuesday. The tank crews called in air cavalrymen and together the U.S. forces killed 40 Communists.

Another group of tanks moved into cut off remnants of the Communist force as they fled, killing seven more.

U.S. casualties in the fighting were listed at four killed and 30 wounded.

Two 600-man South Vietnamese battalions killed 85 North Vietnamese soldiers in an operation in the rolling brush country near the DMZ. Government losses were described as light in the fighting five miles northwest of the town of Cam Lo.

U.S. paratroops on patrol at the edge of the A Shau Valley, 24 miles southwest of the coastal city of Hue Tuesday, turned up 168 long-range rockets, more than 13,000 rifle bullets and 40,000 pounds of rice in a Communist supply dump.

Onteora District in Switch: Some Want Higher Taxes

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK
In what can only be considered an unusual development in this year of tax rebellion, more than a few residents of the Onteora Central Schools District are urging their school board to shoulder them with higher taxes.

A substantial number of tax-paying parents took the floor at a hearing on the proposed school budget for 1969-70, sponsored by the Woodstock Jaycees in the local elementary school Tuesday night, to argue for an option at the polls that would allow them to vote on both the presently proposed $4,178,771 budget and a higher budget. Others pleaded for the reinstatement of Latin (which is being phased out), the addition of other languages not yet offered, and the replacement of electives which are being eliminated in an effort to trim this year's budget.

Woodstock film writer Lawrence Weinberg, a member of the audience, charged that the budget (in spite of the fact that it is at an all-time high and represents an eight per cent increase) was "a capitulation in advance" to tax-wary residents.

Weinberg insisted the budget is "tax oriented rather than child oriented," urged the board to show "leadership and courage" by returning the elective courses trimmed from the curriculum.

Overall, the abrasiveness of this type last year was totally absent at this session, and questions and answers from the floor showed the vast majority of those present were concerned with statistics that reveal Onteora "losing ground in all areas affecting pupil achievement."

A straw vote conducted on the spot showed overwhelming support for retaining the present transportation budget rather than reducing it substantially by increasing the walking limits for school children to one, two or three miles.

A second straw vote on removing driver education from the curriculum and offering it as a student "fee" course after school and summers also met with disapproval. Taxpayers, in fact, voted almost to a man for hiring another driving instructor to assure all students desiring to take such a course the opportunity of doing so. These votes had taken into consideration the fact that these proposals could have reduced the budget by as much as $112,000, but the savings involved failed to sway an audience concerned with the "safety of the children."

One other question was aimed at spotlighting Onteora's near future. "What would happen if the proposed budget is defeated?" the question was asked. "Would Onteora resort to an austerity budget?"

Board President Richard O. Langham answered with an unequivocal "yes," giving as his reason the agreement by the board that it "could not conscientiously reduce the budget further." He said that if the tentative 1969-70 budget is defeated in early May voting, no reduced budget will be submitted by the board for a second vote.

Red Hook Teen Meeting Place Hinges on Help

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK

A second meeting of the Red Hook teenage action group was held Tuesday night with no concrete results.

Ultimate findings, elicited under the guidance of Red Hook High School Principal Everett Barringer, showed that the projected coffee house idea as a meeting place for the youth of the community must depend strongly upon service organizations for financial support.

It was discovered by the youth that the only available rental in the village that could remotely serve the purpose of a meeting place would cost $200 per month, a figure over their heads.

Temporary Basis

It was suggested by several adults present that use be made of available church parish halls on a temporary basis, at least to get the project off the ground.

Raymond Mathison, president of the Red Hook P-TA, cited similar successful groups in Wappingers Falls, Hyde Park, Hudson, and other communities which had built acceptable teen-oriented meeting places.

Barringer interjected his feelings that the immediate need of the project was an organization of the youth which could make decisions, which would then choose several adult "advisors" from interested parents and/or friends.

Harry Bird and his wife Judy, is attendance for the first time, noted that they had previous experience with similar projects in Massachusetts and offered any help in setting up and running a teen meeting place in Red Hook. Bird emphasized what was apparently the youth consensus that the organization be non-structured. He also said that one "can not judge the success of such a place by the numbers of students in constant attendance, but by the availability of the spot."

Priorities were set, with the consent of the students in attendance who represented Red Hook High classes, which had a temporary meeting place on the top of the list and a possible permanent spot to be looked into.

Would Divorce Adult Ties

Barringer came out in favor of divorcing all adult supervision from the project, including the P-TA, until the students themselves had decided exactly who they wanted associated with the endeavor.

It was decided by the students that they would put together a committee in the next few days to have executive power in order to facilitate the progress of a possible coffee house type of meeting place. The need was generally felt by all those teenage students present for a spot to congregate, especially weekends and after school.

The meeting was adjourned with guidelines to be decided upon by the students.

The weekly sessions will still be conducted in the Town Hall meeting room at 108 Canal Street, Ellenville, and will get underway at 7 p. m.

Supervisor Harkin said that the scheduling change was made because the Thursday evening sessions of the Justice Courts were interfering with other township activities, including Town Board meetings.

Two Seek O'Neill's Ulster Post

BELFAST (UPI)—Two right wing politicians battled today to succeed moderate Terence M. O'Neill as premier of Northern Ireland. He resigned after failing to break the "chains of ancient hatred" between Roman Catholics and Protestants.

Informed political sources said the ruling Unionist party was expected to nominate James Chichester-Clark and Brian Faulkner, both former cabinet members in O'Neill's government who quit in protest over his policies.

The party will hold nominations today and a new premier will be chosen Thursday by 35 Unionist members of parliament in a vote precipitated by O'Neill's decision to resign in the face of civil rights strife which has brought Northern Ireland to the brink of civil war.

In an emotional television speech Tuesday night, O'Neill told the people of Northern Ireland, divided between the majority of Protestants and the minority of Catholics, that they have forgotten that "love of neighbor stands beside love of religion."

Militant Unionist William Craig said Tuesday he would support Faulkner for the premiership and "under certain circumstances" would serve under him in his former post of home affairs minister.

O'Neill ousted Craig last year because of his hard-line policy towards civil rights demonstrators.

The 13 opposition members of the Northern Ireland parliament said in a statement that Craig's inclusion in the government would be "completely unacceptable to us and also we believe to the vast majority of liberal minded people in Northern Ireland."

Many Catholics voiced concern over the possible return of Craig. "If Craig comes back in, there'll be trouble on the streets like nothing we've seen up to this," said builder Brendan Cavanagh Tuesday.

KINGSTON

The trout were biting at the State Armory Tuesday night; Gerry Philbin of the Jets and Leonardo da Vinci were attracting their share of young and old, and parents were getting their chests X-rayed as their kids dined on soda and hot dogs.

It was opening night for the 22nd annual Kingston Lions Club Exposition and from the youngest, age two-weeks, to the oldest, there were "places to go and things to see."

The "Mardi Gras" exposition of the Lions will be in the Armory through May 3 from 7 to 10:30 p.m. daily.

"I want to get a shot of Philbin with the kids," said one mother leading a brood of four or five children to the football star's side. The youngsters jumped up on a stage in the rear of the Armory and as their picture was taken with a booming Jets player, other fans lined up for a chance to do the same.

"It's been a steady flow of people," said Lions Secretary Alexander Yosman an hour after the 7 p. m. ribbon cutting ceremony. By the end of the night 3,235 had passed through the front door and into a vast display of Hudson Valley products and Ulster County businesses.

Yosman's wife, Sophie, held a two-week old infant who was said to be the youngest in attendance. The child belonged to Gene Brock, manager of the Community Theater, and his wife who were touring the exhibits.

The infant did have one competitor for the age category. On display in the Boice Brothers Dairy booth was a nine-day-old calf with a sign over it saying "my name is Candy."

Asked if "Candy" missed its mother, an attendant said "no," adding they take calves away from the mothers just after birth. "Another year," said the man to a small group of wide-eyed youngsters, "and she'll be making milk herself."

"Candy," the calf was part of one of the almost 100 exhibitors' displays that filled the Armory and adjoining areas with items from television cameras to models of Da Vinci's contraptions that are still being used as ideas for modern machines.

Patrons picked up drawings, free estimates and booklets of all types being offered beneath bright signs and colorful bunting at many booths.

There were gas-filled balloons for the kids (1,000 of them being offered to youngsters by a moving van line), free records from a local radio station, buttons, bumper stickers, "straw" hats made of plastic, and that necessity at all fairs and home shows: cotton candy and hot dogs.

Some "Special" Fish At the "U Catch 'Em Trout Pool" a happy boy was advised by an onlooker: "Don't snag 'em! It's not sportsmanship if you snag 'em." The boy continued to pull in his fish that had a hook in its side and not in its mouth where "sportsmen" should have their hooks and looked to see if the catch had a special mark that would allow him a prize.

Yosman handed a friend a small bag of peanuts and commented that the exhibition is the most colorful one in the 22 years of shows. Billed as a "Health-Home Show and Sports-A-Rama," he said the exhibit contains a wider range of displays and activities than in the past.

One section that draws persons is the Health Pavilion.

Here, persons from 21 on up are offered tests for diabetes, glaucoma and other health problems and may receive chest X-rays, cardiograms, eye tests plus more tests of weight and height.

An attendant in the Health Pavilion commented that he had seen some of the same faces from the past and expected to test more than ever before.

A special treat for opening night was the presence of grid star Philbin who visited most exhibits and talked with football fans from one end of the hall to the other. Philbin, who looked like he had his padding on under his suit, towered over most everyone in the Armory and was spotted by Jets fans (especially the young ones) just by his size.

Joins the Act He got himself into the exhibition.

Dismay to Shock — the Reaction

Note 2 Pct. Wage Hike for Saugerties Teachers

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Teachers Association in a public statement this week said the Central School Board at its meeting last week approved a 2 per cent wage increase for teachers, rejecting the state fact-finders recommendation of 4 per cent.

The statement revealed that the 2 per cent increase to be added after the annual increment, the tenure increment and credit for approved graduate study has been included in the preliminary budget. The Board of Education announced at last week's meeting that the total preliminary budget would be $4,496,515.50 with estimated revenues of $3,078,735, leaving $1,417,781 to be raised by taxation. The estimated tax rate for next year would be $124.27, an increase of $11.04 over last year's rate based on $1,900 of assessed valuation.

Richard J. Luther, association president said reactions of teachers to this move ranged from dismay to shock. Not only is the board's 2 per cent offer unreasonable in itself in view of the fact-finders comments on the cost-of-living, but it is unbelievable that the board would submit a budget to the public without first negotiating a contract with its employees, both professional and non-professional, he added.

The Teachers Association requested a conference with the Saugerties Board of Education and the superintendent of schools and this was arranged and held Tuesday night at the Administration Building on Hill Street.

A delegation of 11 members of the association met with the School Board, Superintendent of School Dr. Dexter O. Arnold and the principals and vice principals of all schools.

The meeting was scheduled to discuss the contract dispute. Board President Arthur F. Simmons and STA Chief Negotiator H. Graham Barkhoff presented the views on either side. Following the discussions the School Board went into executive session.

More than 120 teachers appeared at the Hill Street offices in support of their delegation.

In view of the teacher's reactions to the School Board's salary offer, the association hopes that all concerned voters will attend the P-TA sponsored meeting on the budget at 8 o'clock tonight in the high school auditorium, Luther said. After the recommendations of the fact-finder, named by the State Public Employment Relations Board, were made public the association forwarded a letter to the School Board rejecting the fact-finder's recommendations on two counts — class size — class load and salary. The association rejected these two sections of the report because the recommended 4 per cent hike "is insufficient to cover the rise in the cost of living," publicly stated at 4.8 per cent. And because the recommendation to raise the credit allocation of $10 per graduate hour to $15 per hour for all graduate study initiated after Sept. 1, would not affect any teachers until after the present contract has expired.

The association noted that this was an alleged discrimination against members of long-standing and determined to reject these portions of the fact-finder's decisions. The aftermath of the fact-finder's report was outlined by the association in a letter sent last week to Harold R. Newman, director of conciliation, Public Employment Relations Board in Albany.

The letter noted that the association had rejected two of the recommendations. The letter also stated, Dr. Egon Plager, appointed fact-finder, by his own admission did not have sufficient time to analyze the situation and to consider the ramifications of the various problems because of unusual pressure in terms of time exerted by the Board of Education. Because of this lack of time, the letter states, we feel the aforementioned two phases of the recommendations are detrimental to our school system.

Urges Action On Bell Post

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON The Rondout Advisory Board met Monday night and called for "immediate action" on the appointment of a Kingston human relations executive director to replace Irving Bell who resigned March 15.

The Rev. James Priest, chairman of the Rondout Board, said that the board "was quite disturbed that the Human Relations Commission has delayed the appointment of a director for so long."

The Rev. Mr. Priest also said, "We would like to stress the appointment of a local person since we know there are at least three applicants from the city of Kingston. While we are not endorsing any one of the applicants, we would, however, like some immediate action taken."

"Immediate action" will probably have to wait until Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan returns from his European trip. Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo is now serving as acting mayor in Garraghan's absence but under the charter he cannot make appointments.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly, chairman of the Human Relations Commission, has called a meeting of the commission for Thursday night after which the commission may announce its choice for executive director.

There have been some 22 applicants for the job that Bell held for a year but the commission has reportedly been stymied by a lack of money to pay a qualified applicant. The salary listed in the 1969 budget for a human relations director is $6,800 per year.

KINGSTON Ulster County officials learned first hand this week what Dutchess County has accomplished with regard to cleaning and preserving its streams and waterways.

Israelis Hit Dam, Bridge Inside Egypt

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli commando units struck 120 miles inside southern Egypt Tuesday night, blasting a dam across the Nile, a bridge and electric lines supplying Cairo, the Israeli army announced.

An Egyptian communique disputed the Israelis, claiming there was "absolutely no damage." There was no evidence of a power shortage in Cairo.

The Israelis also announced that a heavy artillery battle erupted during the night along the entire length of the Suez Canal. A spokesman said the Egyptians started the shooting.

The raid into Upper Egypt was in retaliation for recent Egyptian artillery and commando attacks on Israeli forces occupying the east bank of the Suez Canal. It was almost an exact copy of the first commando penetration into Egypt six months ago and struck at two main areas of the Upper Nile north of the Aswan High Dam.

Presumably helicopters flew the commandos across the Gulf of Suez or the Red Sea to the targets and brought them back, but the army did not say. It gave this report on the results of the raid:

Two high tension cables, 100 yards apart and carrying 500 kilovolts of power to Cairo, were cut. The lines were 300 miles south of Cairo at Isna and Naj Hamadi. Four transformer stations 19 miles to the north were hit in the earlier attack.

The Naj Hamadi dam — also hit last year — was attacked and "heavily damaged." The dam stretches 800 yards across the Nile and is 20 yards wide, the statement said. A shipping lock in the same area was damaged.

Seventy miles north of the dam, commandos blasted the Idku bridge and again caused heavy damage. The bridge is an important junction for the highway from the Red Sea south along the west bank of the Nile.

Egypt said the raid was made by two Israeli bombers which it said were driven off by anti-aircraft fire before they could hit their targets. But an Israeli army spokesman emphasized that the attacks were by commando units and "they met no resistance whatsoever."

A communique earlier said all the Israeli units returned safely.

Once again the Aswan High Dam, President Gamal Abdel Nasser's pride, was spared. But an informed source pointedly commented that the raid was "a clear warning Israel is capable of, and will not refrain from, choosing any target it sees fit along Egypt's main artery, up to the Aswan High Dam itself."

The Lower Esopus Waterways Committee and the Lower Esopus and Parks and Recreation Committee of the County Legislature met with Russell G. Wester of the Federation of Dutchess County Fish and Game Clubs, Inc. and Arthur Wager, treasurer of the New York State Conservation Council Inc.

At the meeting, held in the Ulster County office building, Wester and Wager presented suggestions and techniques used in Dutchess County with the aid and consideration of local civic groups, officials, game clubs and scouts to clean and preserve some of the local waterways.

Wester showed colored slides showing what has been accomplished.

Richard Nace, chairman of the Lower Esopus Waterways Committee stated that "pure water is becoming one of the major problems facing man and unless all sportsmen, and owners, public officials and the average 'man on the street' takes an interest in maintaining our water resources, the day will come when all are faced with the realization that we have destroyed the very water we require for life."

Nace said "the people of Dutchess County have made tremendous progress in their communities working together and it is the aim of the Lower Esopus Waterways Committee to promote such a project in Ulster County with the help of local officials and especially with the support of the public."

Phone Co. Timetable On Extension

KINGSTON William J. Pearson, district manager of the New York Telephone Company, told The Freeman today that the company will begin Phase I of a two part plan to extend telephone service to its subscribers in the Mid-Hudson Valley this fall.

Phase I involves the extending of service from the Poughkeepsie area southward and eastward. Phase II, which involves the extension of service northward from Poughkeepsie to include Kingston, is not expected to be completed until late in 1970.

The Public Service Commission, after several public hearings, has reached a decision to provide toll-free telephone service with a 20-mile radius of the caller but with a somewhat higher basic rate charge.

A subscriber will be given a choice of either regular service or the message rate option. The present rate for an individual service or the message rate option. The present rate for an individual line subscriber in Kingston is $5.25 per month. If the subscriber chooses to take the toll-free package he would pay $6.35 per month.

SIT-DOWN AT TULANE — One ROTC-protestor becomes the object of a tug of war between Tulane University police and his fellow protestors. The group of about 40 sat down on the Tulane ROTC drill field in New Orleans, La., as an ROTC ceremony was to commence, and after a warning campus police commenced removing them. Shortly after this picture was made the troops left the field and the police stopped trying to remove the demonstrators. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Turmoil on the Campus

25 College Gun-Toters Routed

By United Press International
National Guardsmen and state police manned roadblocks near the campus of Voorhees College in Denmark, S.C., early today after routing 25 gun-toting black militants from three buildings Tuesday.

Seventeen students and faculty members were taken into custody by Tulane University officials Tuesday after attempting to disrupt student military training exercises.

Some 600 coeds staged a five-hour sit-in at the Rider College Library in Trenton, N.J., in a campaign to win dormitory keys then settled for all-night vigil in the gymnasium.

Occupation Ended
The Voorhees occupation was ended without a shot being fired as a professor ran to the student-held buildings and urged the militants to surrender.

Prof. Bernie Dingle led the blacks, without their guns, to the home of President John F. Potts, shouting, "get those white racist cops out there."

The troops then surrounded the home and arrested the students.

The campus was closed indefinitely and students were ordered to leave.

Demonstrators on the New Orleans campus of Tulane University, chanting "ROTC-Nazi," and "Kill, Kill," refused orders to leave the drill field where ROTC members were marching.

Campus police moved in and chained the demonstrators to a fire hydrant. They were released after surrendering their identification cards.

Continue Protest

tuition increases. Police broke up a mill in outside a Purdue University building but protesters inside left voluntarily just before police entered to evict them.

On other campuses:
New York—A sit-in at Queensborough College entered its 11th day today. City College of New York remained closed indefinitely, and several classes were canceled at the University of Rochester.

North Carolina—Seven of the 12 blacks enrolled in Belmont Abbey College in Belmont occupied the Science Building Tuesday for 10 hours. The president of the 819-student Roman Catholic school said a negotiating committee had "succeeded in bringing back into the realm of intelligent and organized discussion the problems the students had raised."

Guard, Curfews Helping Out

By United Press International
National Guardsmen and curfews kept the streets of Cairo, Ill., and Winston-Salem, N.C., empty through the night and there were no repetitions of violence in Negro neighborhoods.

Spring weather increased racial tensions in several communities, including San Quentin (Calif.) prison.

Police carrying carbines enforced a curfew at Linden, N.J., after scattered vandalism Tuesday in the wake of the previous night's disturbances.

Two-thirds of Linden High School's students stayed away from classes Tuesday. Police arrested 14 black youths for refusing to disperse, and five youths said they were beaten in a paddy wagon.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto warned the Black Panthers of "strong action" if they threatened or carried out violence. Police had raided Panther headquarters in the Fillmore District Monday, and minor violence occurred.

Most of San Quentin's 3,715 prisoners were kept in their cells Tuesday as prison officials tried to halt a racial feud that had resulted in the deaths of three black prisoners and the wounding of four whites. Warden Louis Nelson blamed the flare-up on "a few hoodlums."

Illinois guardsmen were ordered into Cairo by Gov. Richard Ogilvie Tuesday after a tense night which saw police and firemen retreat under fire from the scene of one of eight firebombings. Dozens of rounds of rifle fire came from the Pyramid Courts housing project across the street, inhabited by 900 of the town's 5,000 Negroes. There were no arrests in connection with the shooting. Monday night had been the third straight night of firebombings and violence in Cairo—an historic cotton town of 10,000 at the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers at the tip of Southern Illinois.

North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott ordered 150-200 guardsmen into Winston-Salem Tuesday after bands of Negro youths roamed the streets for two nights. Police cars were stoned and numerous fires were set. Sniper fire also was reported.

A 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was put on the tobacco city of about 112,000 persons. Police reported no violence early today.

At Linden, a 9 p.m. curfew was imposed by police. Disturbances began Monday night and continued Tuesday.

Division of Powers Key

Some Progress on Decentralization

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —The division of powers between a newly created chancellor of education and a five-member elected board of education was said to be the major problem delaying drafting of a New York City school decentralization bill today.

The newly created office of chancellor of commissioner, who would be appointed by the mayor, has been written in and taken out of the bill several times. The main reason for the conflict was that conservative Republican legislators from the city wanted to avoid a powerful appointed chancellor who would take responsibility away from the elected board.

Republican leaders refused to speculate when the bill would be ready for action, although there were indications of progress late Tuesday night.

There were reports, however, that if the deadlock was not broken in the next several days, the leadership would decide to either recess or come back in special session to tackle the problem.

"A recess would only serve to confound the situation," Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea said. "I don't think it would clear the air but I don't want to rule out circumstances which might force us to."

Duryea said he supported "to a degree" the demands of conservative city legislators in his party for a strong elected school board.

"We elect our boards in the suburbs, and we all agree the local decentralize boards should be elected," Duryea said. "To a degree we should have a responsive central board in the city selected through the electoral process."

The degree that the elected board would have in budget and teacher hiring and firing powers over the local boards was also one of the sensitive issues in decentralization.

The speaker said he would not pass a bill "over the heads of any segment of my party." He refused, however, to say he would not call for approval of a bill that was not endorsed by black and Puerto Rican legislators who are Democrats. This faction has demanded strong powers be given to the 30 local boards created under decentralization.

Terms of the bill have been so fluid that it was nearly impossible to predict what would be contained in the final 50 page bill.

It did appear, however, that the three experimental districts, which include Ocean Hill-Brownsville, which have been functioning under their own boards, would be abolished. Whether similar districts would be set up under decentralization had not been settled, but one source close to the discussions said "some boundary line changes would have to be made in any case" in the three districts.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 30, 1969

Law Day Every Day

By presidential proclamation and an act of Congress, Thursday, May 1, has been set aside as Law Day U. S. A. If law is to continue to be our greatest safeguard, men must stop obeying only the laws they like and violating those they don't like. They must stop regarding the law as their enemy.

The rights and privileges we enjoy in this country carry with them corresponding obligations of citizenship to obey all the laws at all government levels, to respect the rights of others including their property. Disorder, law-breaking and the assertion of personal anarchy must be stopped before the structure of society is eroded. Evidence of this is seen in the campus ferment plaguing this nation, which reached a low point when the Cornell dean of faculty signed an agreement of 'abject and complete capitulation to rifle-toting students radicals who had seized a Student Union Building.

One would almost think that the world forces which seek to weaken the United States from within were behind such lawlessness.

Anything which either encourages men to disregard law or diminishes respect for it strikes at the total framework of our community. Courts also must assume their responsibility in seeing that laws are upheld. No individual or group of individuals can set themselves up as the final judge of what is legal and what is not.

Law Day should serve as a reminder that all of us should set an example of respect for law and order every day.

DeGaulle Keeps His Word

It was in character, for Charles de Gaulle to have resigned as President of France when the electorate refused him the approval he sought on a complicated referendum, whose lengthy list of minor constitutional changes few ordinary Frenchmen understood or really cared about.

But what they did understand was that de Gaulle had made the vote a matter of confidence in his government and especially in himself. He had asked and received their confidence on seven previous occasions. The real issue again was de Gaulle. He was elected to a second seven-year term as President in 1965. He could have stayed until the end of his term in 1972. He put his tenure on the line and resigned as he promised to do if he was not upheld. He was true to his word.

Senate President Alain Pöhl, who becomes interim President for 30 to 45 days while he prepares for the election, is a little-known conservative politician. His background is that of a civil servant. He may run for the presidency using his present post as a base.

Meantime, the United States and other allies of France are very much concerned that de Gaulle's sudden resignation will affect the franc and, through it, the dollar. On the other hand, a regime oriented more strongly to NATO could strengthen that alliance and the franc and the dollar, too.

De Gaulle has known defeat before and has found his way back to power. He led the French alongside the allies to free France in 1944, after its defeat by Germany. He presided shortly over his nation but retired in disgust over petty politics. Now at 78, he may not try for another comeback. It is very doubtful he will ask the French once more to put their faith in him. The last of World War 2 giants has bowed out.

Different Withholding

Sen. John J. Williams has disclosed that employers failed to pay the federal government $339.4 million in income taxes they deducted from their employees' pay checks in 1968.

This was an increase of 32 per cent over 1967's total of $225.7 million in unforwarded withholding. The Delaware Republican calls such delinquency by employers "indefensible."

It is not only indefensible. It is inscrutable that the government should tolerate, as Williams charges it does, repeated delinquencies, "often by the same companies."

The senator ought to make public the names of these companies. The private citizens who paid their taxes in good faith have a right to know just whom it is they are subsidizing.

SDS—German 'Cousin'

West Germany also has its SDS.

This is no relation to our domestic Students for a Democratic Society, that is in the forefront of so much of the strife currently afflicting American campuses, though it is certainly kindred in spirit.

The initials stand for German Socialist Students' Federation. A couple weeks ago the German SDS held a rally in Frankfurt at which the long-haired ones promised to make it a "hot summer" for the authorities as they pursued their dual goals of sweeping changes in German university life and politics.

If this sounds just like home, it only goes to prove that SDS—Silliness, Demagoguery and Stupidity—know no language barrier.

"Can Spring Be Far Behind?"

David Lawrence Says

New Paris Regime May Reunite Western Europe

WASHINGTON — General de Gaulle's resignation from the presidency of France will cause some uneasiness for a while as to the future of that country, but in the long run the change to a more broad-based leader will prove beneficial to the people of France and its allies.

Charles de Gaulle has always been an inflexible individual, and his aides and advisers have hesitated to differ with him. Most of them were afraid to express themselves publicly without specific authority from the "boss."

During the eleven years that General de Gaulle was in command, France has increasingly isolated itself in the world. The British were antagonized by the adamant refusal of the French to let Great Britain into the European Common Market. The United States, which had performed the greatest service to France in World War I and World War II, was alienated when De Gaulle suddenly ordered that NATO forces be withdrawn from France and NATO bases there be dismantled. Yet the words of the North Atlantic Treaty obligate the United States to use maximum power instantly in the defense of France if attacked.

Just why General de Gaulle scoffed at NATO and ordered its forces out of his country was never fully explained. The answer usually given was that he wanted to attain a supreme position himself in Western Europe, and was afraid that he would have to agree to the entry of Great Britain into the Common Market. This might mean concessions to other countries on tariffs or quota limitations, and General de Gaulle feared that France would be adversely affected.

But the more the De Gaulle policies are examined, the more inexplicable they are. There were at times manifestations of friendship with Moscow. It was never clear whether France was in favor of the reunification of Germany. The role of the Paris government was one of independence and singleness of purpose. The theory back of the alliances which had helped France in two world wars was tossed aside, and the impression was created that General de Gaulle thought he could rule Western Europe as a sort of modern Napoleon.

Very few people in this country are familiar with the internal affairs of France. Business played a large part in supporting General de Gaulle because he was an economic nationalist. But even as General de Gaulle grew in political strength, there arose throughout the country a Communist party of major proportions. Though occasionally there have been differences between the opinions expressed by some of the Communist leaders in France and the doctrines of Moscow, the underlying trend in the Communist party in France has always been toward a close relationship with the Soviet Union. When the French government demanded that all NATO forces and installations be removed from France, this was construed by the Soviets as a favorable development for them. The United States did not allow the incident to break up its relations with France, but there has been a big gap between the two countries ever since.

President Nixon, seeking to establish a better working relationship with France, has gone out of his way to extend the hand of friendship and good will to General de Gaulle. This would not have been necessary if someone other than De Gaulle had been the head of the French government. For warm ties between the two peoples have existed for many years, going back to the American Revolution of two centuries ago.

It seems probable that the new regime in Paris will be more intimate with Washington and London than De Gaulle was, and that the trend will be toward a reunited Western Europe. Domestic issues may cause frequent elections, as happens in parliamentary government, but it can be taken for granted that the friendship between the United States and France will be revived. This will be an influential factor in building a stronger union in Western Europe than has been possible in the last decade due to De Gaulle's efforts to play a dominant role on the continent of Europe without regard to the effect of such a course on the unity of the free world.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

This is a nervous house. Both parents have quit smoking again. The clocks walk on their hands around their own creepy faces. Everything tense lasts forever. Someone rang out two-toned doorbell and it sounded like a marimba band playing "Stars and Stripes Forever."

My wife directs most of her spiritual aspirations to Mother Cabrini, so I would guess that, if Kelly is off the butts today, so is Mother Cabrini. I'm so nervous I don't know which brand I'm not smoking. It may be a good time to be off Parliament, or Marvells. It's too clear out for Sweet Caporal's or Piedmont.

I have been out of bed an hour, which translated into cigarettes, is the equivalent of four millennia and an ice age. Kelly sits at the dining room table with a cold Montclair in her lips. She strikes matches, blows them out, and sniffs the blue curl of smoke. We were doing pretty well with cigarettes — up to three packs apiece — which comes to 120 weeds among four lungs each and every day.

We lit fresh cigarettes for every occasion — such as a ringing telephone, someone saying hello, or goodbye; waiting for the shower water to get warm; watching TV; not watching TV; taking the first morning look at each other: passing an ash tray; or the last bent butt in a pack. Whoever coughed first, under our parliamentary procedure, had the floor.

Then I visited a handsome throat specialist named Dr. Alex Morse. He is the cyclops of the lobar coal mine. The reflector stares down the throat and he looks for lesions, which may be of no consequence or which may signal lights out for the patient.

The most attractive part of Dr. Morse's approach, to my way of thinking, is that he does not preach. He says it in one word "Quit." He expects the patient to supply the motivation. Dr. Morse commutes between his office and several examining rooms. On his desk is a huge ash tray and in it is a burning Lark.

It requires about six minutes for the average cigarette to be smoked, and Dr. Morse gets only two or three puffs on each butt he lights in the office. Psychologically, this is smart because it places the doctor as "one of us" in the smoking field, rather than as an avenging missionary.

He said "quit!" To keep him on my side, I'm down to one butt per hour, which comes to 16 per day. I used to smoke that many before breakfast. My wife, a professional masochist, is trying the cold water cure. She stopped smoking 49 hours, 32 minutes and 14 seconds ago, and she has just thrown a steak on the charcoal burner — not to have something to eat — but to burn something and snuff.

She looks at me and breaks up laughing. It is not a happy ha-ha, but one of those whither-thou-guest philosophies which makes a girl wonder why, when Dr. Morse told her husband to stop smoking, she was impelled to quit first. Sentimental stupidity, that's what it is.

It is exactly 20 minutes and 14 seconds to my next Marvel, and Kelly wants lots of warning time so that she can sit near me and breathe, she used to make fun of the Marvels: "That isn't smoking," she said. "They only turn your breath gray." She is no longer condescending. All she asks is that I exhale in her general direction.

I called Gene Kroll, who has been off cigarettes a long time, to find out at what point the intense desire for a smoke decreases. "Three years," he said. I said "Thanks" and hung up. My beautiful Kelly, who was doing a little wall walking in the dining room, came down to ask the verdict. I didn't have the heart.

A few taste buds are taking root. This morning, I smelled percolating coffee for the first time in years. Last night, when I went to bed, the bronchial tubes, which normally play a tune akin to the Harmonica Rascals doing Twelfth Street Rag in Cha-Cha time, wheezed a lone B-flat and fell silent.

The young shepherd, Charlie Chan, just interrupted my chain of thoughtlessness with a bark, so I gave him a little heist with my foot. He is going to have to learn what it is truly like to live in a smokeless house. My wife is sewing new hems in old dresses at top speed. My knuckles are whiter than my teeth. The girls look at us and ask: "How did you ever get started on cigarettes?"

For this they will both go to bed an hour early. The parents will burn all the cigarettes in a big ash tray while leaning forward and breathing. I can hardly wait for the orgy...

Drew Pearson Says Mendel Rivers Wangles European Junket for His Secretaries

WASHINGTON — L. Mendel Rivers, the bourbon-and-branchwater Congressman from Hell Hole Swamp outside Gumville, S. C., tends to look upon the Defense Department as his private preserve. Yet he writes the draft laws affecting the lives of millions of young men. He also passes on the $80 billion arms budget.

As House Armed Services Chairman, he also expects the nation's top generals and admirals to put aside their Vietnam war duties and fly down to South Carolina to commemorate L. Mendel Rivers Day or to attend the unveiling of a bronze bust of his favorite Southern hero — L. Mendel Rivers.

His bronze likeness overlooks Rivers Boulevard in north Charleston, not far from the L. Mendel Rivers Postal Annex and a Navy housing development called Men-Riv Park. The top Pentagon brass who huddled in the rain for the great unveiling landed at L. Mendel Rivers Field.

The courtly Congressman hasn't yet persuaded the Air Force to change its name to the L. Mendel Rivers Service, but he uses the Air Force's VIP squadron as his own private jet. Any time he wants a jet to fly him anywhere in the world, he merely snaps his influential fingers.

Not only does he commandeer Air Force planes and spend the taxpayers' money on his own vacations; he recently sent five of his secretaries on an overseas vacation at the taxpayers' expense.

They are Dorothy Britton, Louise Ellis, Edna Johnson, Bernice Kalinowski and Doris Scott, who spent a glorious two weeks touring Spain, Italy, Germany and England.

They thought their boss was sweet to arrange the trip for them. It wasn't Rivers, however, but the taxpayers who were stuck with the bill. The two-week trip cost the taxpayers $5,788.62, not counting counterpart funds drawn from American embassies and other hidden incidentals — more than a full year's salary for one of the girls.

Study on Housing
To justify the trip, Rivers assigned the girls to make an official study of dependents' housing in Spain. However, they stayed only three days in Spain, where they spent $645.64 in Spanish pesetas.

Those Nixon men who privately spoke their concern as early as late October that Dirksen might prove something of an embarrassment to a new Republican regime are looking good.

Up to now the effect of his free-wheeling flamboyance has been largely felt in the field of appointments. Should it ever be transferred in a big way to issues, Dirksen might find himself repeating the role of stubborn resistor acted out with such vehemence by Dwight Eisenhower's Senate leader, William Knowland of California.

Top Eisenhower aide Sherman Adams wrote of Knowland that it "would have been difficult to find anybody more disposed to do battle with much of the President's program in Congress." He described the Californian as "resolutely incompatible."

Dirksen's senatorial separatism surfaced most recently, of course, with his public disclosure that, because of American Medical Association objections, he would oppose Dr. John Knowles, head of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, should his name be put up for assistant HEW secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs.

Knowles topped HEW Secretary Robert Finch's list, though he has other prospects. Knowles might quickly have been shelved, had not Dirksen kept him alive by openly flaunting his power.

This is only one episode. Dirksen has had a tigerish winter and spring. He helped lower the ax on William J. Driver, head of the Veterans' Administration. He tangled dramatically with Clifford Alexander, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, who later resigned in a flurry of damaging to President Nixon's "civil rights" image. Republicans say that, at one point, Dirksen — having seen a list of potential appointees for a certain Defense Department post — angrily telephoned Secretary Melvin supplied by the American Embassy. They occupied most of their time sightseeing and night clubbing, not studying dependents' housing.

Next, they hurried on to Italy which has no dependents' housing. They took a whirlwind, three-day sightseeing tour and ran up another $750 in bills that were charged to the taxpayers. Their next stop was Germany where they stayed five days and spent $974.68. They wound up their vacation with five days in England, which cost the taxpayers another $975.

This column diligently tried to find out what information the wandering secretaries brought back on dependents' housing, what benefits the taxpayers received for their $5,788.62. Their findings on housing, however, are so secret that the public can be told nothing.

The girls said they couldn't give out any information, presumably to prevent the Russians from finding out how well our military dependents live in Spain. One spokesman said the girls had submitted a five-page report on dependents' housing. But Rivers chief counsel, John Blanford, said the secretaries' report had been oral. In any case, he added, their report was "not the business of the press."

"I answer to Mr. Rivers, not to the public," he said. It's the public, however, that pays Blanford's $27,054.84-a-year salary. While the five secretaries were gallivanting around Europe, incidentally, Blanford took off on a month-long tour of the Far East which cost the taxpayers another $4,172.88, not counting hidden expenses, he claimed this was a fact-finding mission for the House Armed Services Committee. Yet he spent five days in Hong Kong, the Paris of the Orient, which has no U. S. military facilities.

No Right to Know
Rep. Rivers, who authorized all these free vacations for his loyal staffers, was even more contemptuous of the public's right to know. When a reporter for this column asked him about his secretaries' report on housing, he snorted: "I consider this report part of our national security."

Asked for the names of the five secretaries he sent to the vacation spots of Europe, he refused to divulge them. "It is up to me to protect them," he said gallantly. Later this column dug out the names from other sources.

Asked whether $4,700-a-year stenographers were qualified to make a housing survey for Congress, Rivers snapped: "Salary doesn't necessarily determine ability."

Imperiously, he then cut off the questions. As far as L. Mendel Rivers was concerned, the matter was closed.

Note — Rivers rose to power and influence in the House because of his ability to outlive men of more merit and his foresight in being born in an area that still treasures the one-party system. He is living proof that all good things come to those in Congress who wait for the seniority system to elevate them to the pinnacle.

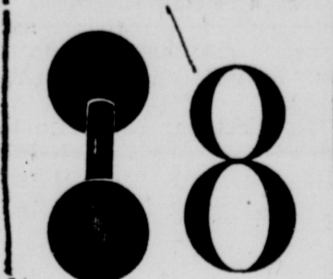

Tax Reformer
Chief credit for the congressional drive to repeal the inflationary investment credit deduction, which permits big business to write off 7 per cent of the cost of new plants and equipment in tax returns, goes to Rep. Charles Vanik of Cleveland, Ohio.

Vanik pioneered the fight against this. Vanik made a fiery speech at a closed-door caucus of House Democrats recently in which he charged that lower bracket taxpayers were forced to pay a 10 per cent surtax while business was being subsidized by the 7 per cent investment credit.

Democratic colleagues, including Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, supported Vanik by an overwhelming vote.

Dirksen: Ebullient Burr Under President's Saddle

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen has become, at the very least, a mild annoyance to the Nixon administration.

Those Nixon men who privately spoke their concern as early as late October that Dirksen might prove something of an embarrassment to a new Republican regime are looking good.

Up to now the effect of his free-wheeling flamboyance has been largely felt in the field of appointments. Should it ever be transferred in a big way to issues, Dirksen might find himself repeating the role of stubborn resistor acted out with such vehemence by Dwight Eisenhower's Senate leader, William Knowland of California.

Top Eisenhower aide Sherman Adams wrote of Knowland that it "would have been difficult to find anybody more disposed to do battle with much of the President's program in Congress." He described the Californian as "resolutely incompatible."

Dirksen's senatorial separatism surfaced most recently, of course, with his public disclosure that, because of American Medical Association objections, he would oppose Dr. John Knowles, head of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, should his name be put up for assistant HEW secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs.

Knowles topped HEW Secretary Robert Finch's list, though he has other prospects. Knowles might quickly have been shelved, had not Dirksen kept him alive by openly flaunting his power.

This is only one episode. Dirksen has had a tigerish winter and spring. He helped lower the ax on William J. Driver, head of the Veterans' Administration. He tangled dramatically with Clifford Alexander, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, who later resigned in a flurry of damaging to President Nixon's "civil rights" image. Republicans say that, at one point, Dirksen — having seen a list of potential appointees for a certain Defense Department post — angrily telephoned Secretary Melvin Laird's office to declare that it was useless to send up that list unless it had another key name on it. The "key name" got the job.

Dirksen does not win them all. Henry Sandoval was named head of the Small Business Administration over a Dirksen choice because earlier the President himself had suggested to Sen. John Tower that the job should go to a Texan (in fact, a Mexican-American) and had asked Tower to supply a candidate.

On Capitol Hill, says one GOP senator's aide, "There is dismay among the younger senators at the scrapes Dirksen gets into."

Remembering Dirksen's close ties with Lyndon Johnson, some Hill Republicans find wry amusement in the minority leader's effort to apply rigid party loyalty tests in appointments. One comment: "Look who's the defender of the faith!"

As indicated, concern over Dirksen long ago pervaded the Nixon entourage. "Unfortunate" is one of the milder words used to characterize the senator's televised bout with Alexander. The Knowles case provides fresh embarrassment.

The bigger peril to the Nixon-Dirksen relationship, however, is the growing administration conviction that the senator is not a reliable reporter of events. His accounts of the private Hill leadership breakfast at the White House are called "misleading."

In this light, it is understandable why Nixon men, looking ahead last fall, did not want Dirksen to stand out as a principal administration or party spokesman.

The unassailable fact is that their wish to reduce or nullify the "Dirksen effect" was a key factor in the early decision to remove Ray Bliss as national chairman and replace him with one like the newly installed Rep. Rogers Morton, who could serve as a better-controlled, more articulate, smoother party and White House voice. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

France to Follow De Gaulle Paths

By LEON DENNEN
SEA Foreign News Analyst

NEW YORK—(NEA)—France without De Gaulle will lack his touch of authoritarian rationalism, and perhaps some of its present importance. But the changes in foreign policy may not be as radical as many of France's allies would wish.

The NATO nations will probably find the general's successors easier to deal with and perhaps more open to compromise, especially on such issues as Britain's membership in the Common Market.

Whether the new president is a veteran Gaullist, like former Premier Georges Pompidou, or a man representing the center-left coalition, he is likely to be less pro-Russian and pursue a more even-handed policy in the Middle East.

But France after De Gaulle is still attached to the idea of an independent nuclear force, a Europe in which French influence tries to exceed that of the United States and a foreign policy that does not hesitate to go its own way.

The question the French now face is whether any man or group of men can effectively carry on De Gaulle's work. Despite these illusions of France's grandeur, the old general, as president, was a shrewd and realistic politician.

He had the courage to grant independence to Algeria and thus avert a bloody civil war. He was instrumental in giving France a new constitution that reduced the power of the chaotic National Assembly and strengthened the authority of the president.

The unusual mandate De Gaulle received in 1958 was in a large measure an expression of France's accumulated disgust at the spectacle of governments coming and going like so many rejected lovers at the whim of a fickle National Assembly.

Before 1958, the National Assembly controlled the executive. There was no separation of power. But what De Gaulle created was a "government and a parliament that worked together but remained separated as to their responsibilities."

To be sure, what the Fifth Republic actually produced was only a partial separation of power since the National Assembly can still overturn a government in certain well-defined circumstances.

But the system worked well enough under De Gaulle. In fact, it worked too well. He dominated the government so completely that it was impossible to say whether or not the Fifth Republic's lifeline would extend much beyond the general's presidency. Since no president stronger than De Gaulle can be imagined, what happens in the future?

There is no doubt that the general's successor will have to discard a style of government that no one can hope to imitate. This is not to say that France will revert all the way to the chaos that brought De Gaulle to power in 1958. But it is quite likely that a compromise will be reached between the parliamentary whims of the Fourth Republic and the paternal authoritarianism of De Gaulle. This means a France that is still stable, but democratically oriented.

France, like most countries in western Europe, is plagued by economic difficulties and student riots. It is possible that the student and worker rebellion of last May was the beginning of De Gaulle's end.

But it is hardly likely that the vast majority of French men and women, having once been shown a real alternative to the bitter, unprofitable and often degrading era before De Gaulle, will be in a mood for radical changes after De Gaulle.

The Middle East

Editor, The Freeman:

The Freeman recently printed three articles by Stanley King of the United Jewish Appeal. Heart-rending stories usually are profitable, and Mr. King went all out to provide the reader with the most woe-begone of all woe-begone tales and thereby wring his pocketbook. Mr. King solicited funds for the UJA to help courageous Israelis stab off Arab terrorists. Indeed! Who is terrorizing whom?!!!!

I also visited the Middle East in the summer of 1968. Furthermore, I lived in that area from the time I was born till 1961. The facts in brief are:

In 1897 the international Zionist movement formally organized itself to call all Jews to their "home" in Palestine. Persecution of the European Jews before and after World War I intensified this movement. Thus began the Middle East problem.

Till 1914 and after 31 years of Zionist attempts to colonize Palestine, 94% of the Palestinian population still was Arab. In 1917 a British mandatory government gave the Zionists a declaration to establish a home for the Jews in Palestine provided that the rights of the Arabs were preserved. This triggered large scale Jewish immigrations. Before 1932 the British government never admitted more than 5,000 Jewish immigrants a year. In 1932, 9,532 Jewish immigrants were admitted; 30,327 in 1933; 42,359 in 1934; 61,854 in 1935 (see Dan Smooth, Dallas, Texas, Broadcasting Edition, Jan., 1969).

These large immigrations most certainly did infringe on the rights of the Arabs! Despite this massive immigration, the Arabs owned more than 95% of present day Israel until 1947 when the Zionists started to expand their holdings through brutal tactics and terror. One incentive to get out came in the form of bombs dropped in the crowded Arab markets in Jerusalem by Zionists in armored vehicles. April 9, 1948 — the Israelis slaughtered the village of Deir Yassin — 250 mutilated dead, including more than 100 women and children; and some of the very few survivors the Israelis paraded through Jerusalem much as the Viet Cong now parade our captured soldiers, this, of course, as a warning of future horrors to resisting Arabs. Quite naturally the civilian Arabs fled their homes—

"The evil deeds committed by submitted to the kind of torture if they again try to cross the warned these criminal elements the story I am not asking for the Palestinian"

the Zionist Jews against the that the Jews endured under the Nazi war criminals.

No wonder the Arabs are ever more strongly opposing the Israelis. At the battle of Alkaramah, Al Fatah, pioneer freedom fighters, courageously crushed an attempt to destroy it by 15,000 Israeli soldiers supported by armored cars, tanks, and planes carrying napalm. Alkaramah saw a 10-year-old Palestinian boy destroy an Israeli tank with hand grenades. Alkaramah battle taught the Israeli extremists that the Jordan valley will be their graveyard; deplore in Biafra! Al Fatah has

In 1947, the U.N. issued a resolution that Palestine be partitioned into an Arab state and a Jewish state, Jerusalem be an international zone, and all the one million Arab refugees be expatriated or compensated. But the prime minister of Israel, David Ben Gurion, announced: "We won't accept one single Arab."

1967—the Zionists started another war in order to fulfill their dream of an Israel extending from the Nile in Egypt to the Euphrates in Iraq. Napalm and the same terror tactics of 1947 won for the Israelis.

The Zionists even now violate international law by devastating villages and homes, 5,000+ homes already destroyed in occupied territory. In Jerusalem itself all houses having Islamic religious significance near the walling wall have been razed to the ground to provide more room for Jewish worshippers. Many other houses are devastated on the basis of false accounts that Arab commandos stayed there—even if this was true the Geneva convention prohibits this kind of devastation. Every day mass arrests are made; and Arab civilians are

Dirksen to Oppose Appointment by Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's choice to head a key civil rights agency reportedly has run into opposition from Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, who demanded—and got—the ouster of the previous chairman.

Sources indicated that Dirksen is lining up votes to oppose Nixon's nomination of William H. Brown, 39, a Philadelphia Republican, to replace Clifford L. Alexander Jr. as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

The five-member EEOC is charged with seeing that government bans on job discrimination are followed by businesses and industries.

When asked about the reports, Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, declined comment.

But his opposition, coupled with expected antagonism from Southern Democrats, could doom Brown's nomination when and if it reaches the Senate for confirmation. Brown was originally nominated for a commission seat by President Lyndon B. Johnson and Nixon resubmitted his name and then decided to make him chairman.

Coincidentally, the fight paralleled a move by Nixon to strengthen the EEOC's powers to enforce a ban on racial bias in employment.

Dirksen said Tuesday the administration's proposal will convert the EEOC into a quasi-judicial agency with limited cease-and-desist powers.

The arrangement, Dirksen said, would pattern the EEOC's enforcement authority after that of the National Labor Relations Board, making the commission's orders effective only if they gain approval of a U.S. Court of Appeals.

In opposing Brown who, like Alexander, is a Negro, Dirksen is reported to feel that the Philadelphia lawyer shares the strict enforcement views of his predecessor.

The Illinois senator accused Alexander last month of "punitive harassment" of businesses. The White House announced the next day a new EEOC chairman would be named. Alexander then quit before he was fired, although he retained his commission seat.

Dirksen said he favors Nixon's proposal to give limited enforcement powers to the EEOC, but the measure faces opposition from senators who want stronger legislation and southerners who maintain it goes too far.

President Yields On Airways, Airports Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon apparently has yielded to top-level economists and returned to the controversial Supersonic Transport—SST—and airways and airports programs to the Transportation Department for further study.

"It's a delay. They aren't dead," said an administration source.

The proposal for an 1,800 miles-per-hour supersonic airliner had been on the President's desk several weeks and Nixon had indicated a decision by the end of the month.

The airports and airways measure with its unique financing proposals, however, had been in the Budget Bureau for evaluation by various agencies and action had not been expected so quickly.

Major Setback

The delay in both programs appeared to be a major setback to Transportation Secretary John Volpe who had devoted much of his first weeks in office to the SST and had publicly awarded No. 1 priority to airways and airports in early February.

He reportedly had asked the President to withhold an announcement on the SST—if it was going to be negative—until he could simultaneously announce a go-ahead on construction to ease mounting air traffic jams Volpe says are creating increasing hazard to air travelers.

Both bills, however, ran into strong opposition among presidential money men, particularly in the Budget Bureau and the Treasury.

Presidential science adviser Lee DuBridge also reportedly was against immediate continuance of the SST whose deafening travels beyond the sound barrier were feared would prevent it from ever flying land routes.

Volpe vehemently denied last week an Associated Press story that said he had given priority to the two aviation programs over an all-out drive to solve the problems of mass transit, which the Democrats had given No. 1 priority.

Although both the SST and airports programs had left the Transportation Department first and Volpe reportedly made his plea for them without mention of mass transit, he said unclogging the traffic in the nation's cities was of equal urgency.

Volpe said his department was hard at work on a mass transit bill and that if the White House or the Congress rejected it, he would have to seek reinstatement of the $25 million for mass transit studies cut out of the revised Nixon budget two weeks ago.

Backers of the SST say the United States must develop its own model to remain competitive with Soviet and Anglo-French versions.

Opponents say the plane will never be practical, partly because its great noise will bar it from land routes and all but very few airports.

Half Billion Spent

About half a billion dollars has been spent so far to help Boeing Corp. develop a plane that so far has been plagued with design problems.

Supporters said about $209 million would be needed in fiscal 1970 to keep the SST program going. Former President Johnson recommended no money in his budget submitted in January and Nixon's revised budget provided none. There is expected to be about $50 million in carryover funds left over from fiscal 1969, however.

The airports and airways bill contained several controversial provisions including user taxes for a trust fund, vastly increase grants for construction including restoring federal aid for building terminals and $2 billion in federal loan guarantees for local bond issues to finance airport construction.

The Duke at White House—One of the Swingingest Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The warm, driving jazz of Duke Ellington filled the East Room, buffing everything to a high, festive glow in one of the swingingest evenings ever at the White House.

The bash honored the Duke on his 70th birthday, and appropriately, everything was topped off with a jam session that didn't break up until 2:15 a.m.

Ellington was awarded a Medal of Freedom by President Nixon and even the citation was hip: "... In the royalty of American music no man swings more or stands higher than the Duke."

Ellington danced, signed autographs, kissed almost everyone on the cheek, including the President, and took a turn at the piano. His judgement on the evening: "Lovely."

Singer Mahalia Jackson pointed out that it was the first time a black man had ever been honored at the White House. And to gauge the fun, a butler said, "I would have worked for nothing tonight."

An all-star jazz ensemble played a strictly Ellington program after a black-tie dinner. The group was the nucleus of the jam session later that included Billy Eckstine, Dizzy Gillespie, Nixon's law partner, Lem Garmant on clarinet, and some scarlet-tuniced members of the Marine Band.

President Nixon led a champagne toast "to the greatest Duke of them all—Duke Ellington." He also sat in on piano, tinkling "Happy Birthday."

Duke already has eight honorary degrees, membership on the National Council of Arts and his profile on a stamp of Togoland. So he was not awed to be at the White House, where his father was parttime butler, during the Harding administration.

With Duke were five relatives, his sister, Ruth, son Mercer and his wife, grandson Edward K. II and granddaughter Gaye. In the crowd were Benny Goodman, Cab Calloway, Billy Eckstine, Mahalia Jackson and Richard Rogers.

Duke is 70 years old now, does that have any effect on his art? a newsman asked earlier.

"What's age got to do with music?" the Duke parried.

How does he keep up the pace? Clean living? Jogging?

"That one gassed the Duke. Hey, that's good." When he finished a hearty chuckle he said, "the only thing I do outdoors is concerts."

Assembly Passes Bill by Bell For Regents Board of Review

KINGSTON — The highest courts," Bell said. "Decisions by our courts have said that they cannot, at any time, substitute their judgment for that of the commissioner on matters of education. This bill was conceived originally as a result of a court decision in which the court stated that the Legislature has ended the commissioner with all but 'absolute power' to make public policy and administrative decisions in the field of education and that the courts are powerless to evaluate the sociological, psychological and educational assumptions relied on by the commissioner," Bell said.

Sponsored by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Ulster), the measure also calls for the creation of a board of review with the Board of Regents. Bell said the bill would eliminate a provision in the existing law which renders all decisions made by the commissioner of education as "final and conclusive" and not subject to question or review in any place or court whatever.

"No public official in the state has such a wide sweep of binding power which insulates him even from review by the expression of viewpoints of many different philosophies and groups. Permit aggrieved persons to appeal to a duly constituted legal authority rather than expressing grievances through boycotts, strikes and other disruptive actions. Grant a means of appeal to all parents and taxpayers who have no means of appeal at the present time. Assemblyman Bell said that court decisions over the past years have emphasized the need for this legislation when considering problems such as the involuntary busing of young children, the failure of the commissioner to certify a prominent European neurosurgeon as a doctor in our state, the assessment of tuition payments upon the guardian of several children who were left orphans, and the commissioner's reversal of a New York City Board of Education requirement that teachers cooperate in providing information regarding the communist affiliation of fellow teachers.

The board is vested with the power to review any order or decision of the commissioner of any appeal or petition made to him by any person conceiving himself aggrieved and authorized to make such appeal or petition. They are then authorized and required to examine and decide the same. Assemblyman Bell stated that he was hopeful and optimistic that the Senate would pass this measure and send it to the Governor.

Wants Closed Meeting For Germ Warfare Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., called a one-day closed meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today to hear a prize-winning biologist and an irate congressman on germ warfare. Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, D-N.Y., said he would urge the committee to investigate chemical and biological warfare developments in U.S. laboratories. McCarthy said such weapons are being transported and stockpiled in the United States at a dangerous rate. He said the Soviet Union also has made advances in the weapons.

The other witness was Matthew Meselson, Harvard University biologist and 1963 recipient of the National Academy of Science prize for molecular biology. Meanwhile, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., introduced a resolution calling for an outright ban on all further development of biological agents. He said the United States contends that the work in this area is of a defensive nature. It is ironic that we also seem to be working in the field of offensive delivery systems, the sole purpose of which is to enable us to use the biological agents as weapons of war," Nelson told the Senate Tuesday.

McCarthy told President Nixon Tuesday the United States had quietly begun practicing a policy of germ warfare.

McCarthy said the change had taken place gradually over the years without the knowledge of the American people and lacking a conscious decision on the part of elected officials. To clarify the situation, McCarthy suggested Nixon re-submit for Senate ratification the 1925 Geneva Protocol banning the use of gas and bacteriological warfare. Although the United States never ratified the protocol, McCarthy recalled that the United States initiated it and said it supports the treaty fully.

Flood Waters of Mississippi Near Peak in Eastern Iowa
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Mississippi River, its swollen waters sandwiched on course by sandbags and earthen levees, neared its peak along eastern Iowa today as the waters to the north receded.

The crest of the spring's snowmelt moved past Keithsburg, Ill., and the Weather Bureau forecast the river would crest at 18.2 feet at Burlington, Iowa, today and at 18 feet at Keokuk, Iowa, Thursday. Up river at Dubuque, Iowa, National Guardsmen who have patrolled the city's flood fortifications since a spring thaw began the flooding, were expected to be deactivated later this week.

In Wisconsin, the state's Division of Emergency Government announced that 15 Wisconsin counties have sustained a total of $1.8 million flood damage. They estimated that early warnings and levee work, including $560,844 in aid from the Army Corps of Engineers, prevented $145 million damage.

The engineers said Operation Foresight—the construction of new dikes and the strengthening and raising of old levees in anticipation of the flood—also will prevent further damage along the Mississippi.

An Army spokesman said the widening of the main stream at the point where the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers meet would easily accommodate the crests of the two rivers which will arrive at the point just above St. Louis later this week.

The Mississippi was at flood stage from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to Libby, Minn., on the headwaters west of Duluth, except around St. Louis and some points above Minneapolis.

The present overflow is largely on low-lying farmlands or areas where the potential flood loss was too small to justify expensive protection.

Two northward-flowing rivers receded only slightly—the Souris which flooded about one-third of Minto, N.D., and the Red, which formed a 150-mile lake along the North Dakota-Minnesota border.

It may take them three weeks to return to their banks.

Mechanic Held in Death of Former Albany Boy, 8

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — An auto mechanic was held today on a charge of murder in the death of a six-year-old boy, formerly a resident of Albany, N.Y.

The body of the victim, Freddie Johnson Jr., was located early Tuesday in a swampy area north of here after a search of several hours.

Jailed without bond in the case was Richard Lee Wasley, 25, a bachelor auto mechanic who, several months ago, moved into the trailer park where the Johnson family resides. Wasley was reported to have lived previously in Virginia and Rhode Island.

The Johnsons moved here from Albany about 18 months ago.

The boy disappeared from his trailer home Saturday night, the second such disappearance of a child in the central Florida area this month.

Camilla Jo Hand, 8, of Ocoee dropped from sight while walking to school April 10. Her mutilated body was later found in a shallow grave.

Sheriff's Lt. Jack Bachman said at a news conference Tuesday afternoon that an investigation was continuing in the Hand case. "We have nothing at this time to associate the two (cases)," he said.

Officials issued newsmen a three-page set of guidelines to be followed in the release of information on the Johnson case and required questions be written out.

"I have three questions already prepared that I know you are going to ask," Bachman said. "They are, was the body in a grave, was there a sexual assault and was the body mutilated?"

"As for sexual assault, I can't say. We don't have a report yet. The body was not mutilated but there were signs of violence. Was the body in a grave? It was covered," the officer said.

To questions of how the officers knew just where to go to find the body and as to what led to Wasley's arrest, Bachman was less specific.

"As a result of about 54 hours of investigating and running down leads and so forth, we went to this area," he said.

"Based upon our 54 hours of investigation we established probable cause that caused him to be arrested," Bachman said, referring to Wasley.

To numerous other questions about the background of the suspect and statements made by other persons, Bachman replied, "I have no comment concerning this."

Wallkill Cow Sets Records

The 2,707th yearly production record exceeding a half ton of butterfat has been completed by a Registered Holstein cow, Sally Togus Admiral 5406730 (GP), owned by Arthur F. Maier, Wallkill.

The New York Holstein's official record of production totalled 23,750 pounds of milk and 1,013 pounds of butterfat in 364 days. She started her lactation at the age of 7 years and 3 months and was milked twice daily.

"Sally" was bred in the herd of Roy F. Denniston, Wallkill. She was sired by Burke Maview Togus 1181029, a bull that has earned a Silver Medal Production Sire recognition.

Cornell University supervised the weighting and sample testing of her production in cooperation with the Dairy Herd Improvement Registry program of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

covering a five-county upstate area. Troopers conducted simultaneous raids in Montgomery, Fulton, Schenectady, Albany and Rensselaer counties and confiscated more than 10,000 items of smut pictures and reading matter.

Police said the raids covered newsstores in various communities in the counties as well as variety stores and lunch rooms. They said the raids followed an eight-week investigation, begun after parents, clergymen and others registered complaints.

Paperback books, magazines and pictures described by police

"as the dirtiest ever" were taken to state police

Loudonville for examination. Troopers said they refrained, at the time, from making any arrests because of a recent ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court on the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

A spokesman said the evidence will be presented to State Supreme Court Justice John T. Casey and that some arrests may follow later. Casey issued 25 search warrants for the raids.

About 50 state police conducted the raids, headed by Capt. A. L. Bardossi of Troop G headquarters.

employment at the time of their commitment may still apply for work release providing they are willing to accept and work faithfully at local employment secured for them by the local committee.

Provisions may also be made for release of prisoners to participate in vocational training with such training performed under the supervision of various departments of the County of Ulster. Such training would be at no expense to the county other than those normally incurred by the incarceration in Ulster County Jail.

In the case of students pursuing a regular course of instruction in local schools or colleges, the committee would also have to approve application to continue.

All earnings of work release prisoners would be forwarded to the sheriff by the employer with each prisoner required to pay, from his earnings, the county cost of food, lodging and clothing at the rate of five dollars per diem.

Expenses incurred in traveling to and from his employment and meals taken outside jail would be paid by the individual from his earnings.

When recommended by the Department of Social Services, a portion of his earnings may be turned over to his dependents to provide for their support.

Unexpended earnings would be retained in the individual's trust fund and returned to the prisoner upon release from confinement.

Would Maintain Security

Jail security would be maintained with inmates conforming to such rules and regulations issued by the sheriff.

If violations are encountered, the sheriff may revoke, suspend or modify the plan of any prisoner at any time.

Employers of prisoners would be instructed to notify a prisoner fails to report to work. Any violation of conditions would be deemed an escape and subject to prosecution.

When any prisoner has had his plan revoked, suspended or modified, he may appeal for a review of his case to the State Commission of Correction.

Time limits on the number of hours a prisoner may be released from jail would be established by the sheriff.

It would also be a requirement for approving work release for each individual, that a waiver of extradition be made in advance.

Levitt Lists Cost to State In Medicare Cuts

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — President Nixon's proposed cuts in medicare contributions will cost New York State "at least $45 million, and possibly $69 million, in the current state fiscal year," State Comptroller Arthur Levitt said Tuesday.

"The reduction in aid payments would be caused by the announced proposal to limit payment for the care of mentally ill persons in state institutions to 120 days," Levitt said in a letter to Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-Brooklyn, chairman of the state delegation's steering committee.

If the cut were to apply to mentally retarded children, according to Levitt, it would cost the state $69 million. Cutting contributions for the mentally ill would mean an aid reduction of $45 million, Levitt said.

Goldwater Jr. Wins Election To Congress

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Barry Goldwater Jr., a physical and political carbon copy of his famous father, won election to Congress Tuesday by defeating a little-known Democrat in his first try for political office.

Goldwater, a 30-year-old bachelor stockbroker, built up a steady lead over Democrat John K. Van de Kamp in Southern California's sprawling 27th Congressional District.

With 175 of the district's 312 precincts reported, the son of the 1964 Republican presidential nominee had 35,912 votes to 28,252 for Van de Kamp, 33, a former U.S. Justice Department official.

Goldwater voted for the first time in California last fall and Van de Kamp, although a member of the founding family of a California-based bakery chain, could not vote for himself. His residence is in suburban Pasadena, outside the congressional district.

WHAT IS THE BEST SPRING DESIGN?

Of the many popular spring designs, the free-end spring design has an enviable record for performance and durability. This design utilizes an hour-glass shape to provide a graduated firmness which buoys up heavy weights and gently yields to lighter weights. They are knitted together in a knitted pattern to give free-acting, supple surface. Holland Maid's free-end spring is designed with added turns of wire to give "live wire support." In fact, 50% more live wire coils per spring. Additionally Holland Maid's alternate rows of right and left-hand springs eliminate mattress side-sway and sagging and prevent the mattress from leaning.

Local Dems Hear Klein Score Sorenson Report

SAUGERTIES Kingston's Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein last week sharply attacked the Sorenson Report in an address before Town of Saugerties Democratic Club at Harp's Inn.

Klein, a former city judge is seeking the office of county Democratic chairman, a post he held some years ago.

In scoring the report, he said the principles would discourage separate women's and young Democratic organization within the party fabric. He said that he especially resented the implication from publicity issued by the state chairman's office (although unintentional) that appeared to attack young people with Democratic leanings. He said he felt that the future of all parties and particularly the Democratic Party depends upon recruitment of the young idealistic person, and that we have already seen in Ulster County that the young Democrats have not only enjoyed participation in politics through the organization but by their example have encouraged others to do the same.

He also stated that "the Sorenson Report appears to be an effort on the part of the so-called titular heads of the party to so organize the party as to put it completely within their control through the state organization."

Chief Petty Officer James Juliano, U.S. Navy recruiting officer for the Kingston area showed a very dramatic and enlightening film on LSD. Club members recommend that other clubs and organizations obtain this film.

James Keefe and Homer Strong, co-chairmen for the spring dinner dance held Saturday, April 19 thanked everyone who helped with the affair.

Vets Poppy Week Slated May 3-9

SAUGERTIES The local VFW sponsors bedside bingos, holiday parties and furnishes needed supplies for the Veteran's Hospital, Castle Point. Each month volunteer workers spend a work day at the hospital. In addition to the hospital work, needy veterans and their families are aided throughout the year in Saugerties.

May 3 through May 9 has been designated VFW Poppy Week. Uniformed member of Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW and its Ladies Auxiliary will be soliciting funds for their hospital and rehabilitation fund.

Poppies are made by the disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the nation and resold on a local level. All monies realized must be used exclusively for hospital work. Poppy children Paul and Maryanne DeCelle spearhead the annual appeal and will ride on their own float in the Loyalty Day parade Saturday.

50-Year Pins Awarded to Two At Ulster Lodge

SAUGERTIES Ulster Lodge 193, F&AM, recently awarded 50-year pins to two members at a meeting held in the lodge rooms on Russell Street.

Right Worshipful Howard S. Whitaker presented the 50-year pins to Glenford Teetsel and Howard A. Goetichius.

Goetichius is a member of Mystic Tie Lodge in New Jersey and affiliated with Ulster Lodge on Feb. 2, 1964. Goetichius wore his original lambskin apron presented to him at Mystic Lodge in 1919.

Candidate Night Slated by P-TA

SAUGERTIES Saugerties P-TA will have a meeting 8 o'clock tonight at the high school auditorium.

Candidates for the Board of Education are invited to present their views to the public. Possible cooperation between Dollars for Scholars and the P-TA will be discussed. There will also be a budget presentation.

It is realized that the school budget is one of the few financial issues on which residents may cast a "No" vote. However, it is not fair to the school children to vote "No" without comparing costs with neighboring schools and deciding whether Saugerties is getting its dollar's worth in education. The public is urged to attend.

HANDLING THE MAIL — Mrs. Joan Feldmann of Kingston became the first distaff member in Saugerties Post Office last week with her appointment as postal clerk. She recently passed the civil service test for the position.

Turkey Dinner

SAUGERTIES Katsbaan Ladies Aid will hold its annual spring turkey dinner Saturday, May 3 at the Katsbaan Church Hall. Servings will be at 5, 6 and 7 p.m. and reservations may be made with Mrs. William Fiero.

This year will be an outdoor candlelight procession to Our Lady of Lourdes grotto located on the convent grounds.

The sisters who teach at St. Mary's school and also some of the school children and the Rosarians will participate. Those planning to participate will assemble at 7:30 p.m. in the school and wear white gloves. The investiture of new members and Benediction will follow in the church. Monsignor Kaufmann will be guest speaker for the evening. There will be a dessert buffet and all area women are cordially invited to attend.

Co-chairmen for the event are Mrs. Al Curl and Mrs. Arthur DeCelle.

They will be assisted by Mrs. Harold Wilsey and Mrs. Donald Trees. Mrs. John Laird is responsible for refreshments. There will also be a final sale of tickets for the Communion breakfast Sunday at the Flamingo Restaurant after the 8 o'clock Mass. Father Edward Day, CSSR from Mt. St. Alphonsus is guest speaker. Tickets for the breakfast may be purchased from Mrs. Frank Caffrey or Mrs. Richard Kramer, co-chairman; or Mrs. Trees or Mrs. Albert Treu. Mrs. Robert Waggoner is in charge of programs for the breakfast.

Loyalty Day Events

SAUGERTIES Morning church services, an afternoon parade and an evening dance will mark the observance of Loyalty Day, 1969 in Saugerties on Saturday.

For the 17th year, members of Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW and its Ladies Auxiliary have formed a Loyalty Day Committee to help foster true dedication to the American way of life by promoting a day long celebration.

A Mass for peace will be celebrated at 9 a.m. in St. Mary of the Snow Church to start the day. An appropriate patriotic rite will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. by the Rev. R. E. Shemeske, pastor of the Atonement Lutheran Church, Market Street.

Stepping off at 2 p.m. from the Finger Street area will be a six-division parade under the direction of parade marshal Gilbert Ricks. All youth groups and interested adult organizations will line-up at 1 p.m. Ricks stressed that persons wishing to participate contact him immediately.

At the conclusion of the parade at Cantine's Field, soda and 2,000 hot dogs will be distributed to the marchers.

Included in the lineup will be a float with the nine winners of the recently concluded Loyalty Day essay contest.

Dancing in the evening from 9 to 1 to the "County Three" concludes the day's events. Open to the public, tickets may be purchased at the door of the VFW Hall, Livingston Street. The admission also includes beverage and a buffet supper.

Fly your flag, urges VFW Commander Max Benson, and attend all the events to inspire the youth and rededicate ourselves to patriotism and freedom.

Loyalty Essay Winners Named

The Loyalty Day Committee of Saugerties Memorial Post 5034, VFW and the Ladies Auxiliary this week announced the nine winners in its essay contest conducted in Saugerties Central Schools grades five through 12.

The essay contest was held in conjunction with the annual observance of Loyalty Day scheduled for Saturday.

All entries were coded with no names shown. A difficult decision was reached after thorough and long deliberation by the three judges, Mrs. Natalie Daley, social studies coordinator in the Saugerties school, Miss Francine Baldwin, sixth grade teacher in St. Mary of the Snow, and the Rev. Frederick Imhoff, local pastor and principal of Rowena Memorial School, Palenville.

Winners are: Grades 5 and 6, first place, Elcova Holloran; second place, Joseph Reilly; third place, Frank Ennist, all of Mt. Marion School. In grades 7, 8 and 9, winners are: Debra Trees, JoAnne Kerbert of St. Mary's and Gloria Archer of Saugerties Junior High. Grades 10, 11 and 12 winners are:

Suzanne Martin, Anita Smith and Barbara MacMullen, all of Saugerties High.

Demonstration For Fire Company Set

Malden-West Camp Fire Company is sponsoring a demonstration lecture on petroleum gas and other mineral and allied industries Monday, May 19 at 7 p.m. in Malden Fire Station.

All Saugerties area fire companies are invited to attend. Assistant Chief John Cox said he would like the chiefs of neighboring fire companies, who plan to attend to let him know how many will be attending the demonstration session in order that arrangements may be made to handle the gathering.

The demonstration will be conducted by the Health and Safety Division of the U.S. Department of Interior, Bureau of Mines.

Fires and explosions on the laboratory scale will be demonstrated at the session, Cox said. The first of four demonstrations in the series is the Magic of Fire. Others will be planned if the response is good.

First place winners in each division will receive a $25 Savings bond, second place winners $10 and third place winners $5. All awards will be made, where possible, at a school assembly within the month. Winners will also be on a float in Saturday's annual Loyalty Day parade.

Ceramic trophies, made by Co-Chairman Mrs. Barbara Sperl, will be on display in the windows of the Saugerties branch of the Kingston Savings and Loan, Main Street.

Students wrote on the topic, "A Loyal American, from the past or present."

According to the judges, enthusiasm ran high especially in the lower grades. Asked if the purpose of the contest to instill thoughts on loyalty came across, they agreed the contest had proved the students understood and were concerned about the topic.

Appreciation and thanks are extended from the VFW co-chairmen Mrs. Isabel DeCelle and Mrs. Sperl to Dr. Dexter Arnold, the principals and teachers who cooperated to make the essay contest a success.

Monies received from this project will be used to support Jaycee community projects.

Mohonk Nature Programs Open This Week

NEW PALTZ
The annual series of nature programs at Lake Mohonk Mountain House will start this week with the Wildflower-Birding Weekend from May 1 to 4. Dr. and Mrs. Carl George of Union College Schenectady and Dr. Robert Pyle of State University College, New Paltz, will be leaders for the first event. Program will include recording bird songs for analysis to a discussion of existentialism.

Outdoor Orientation
The special outdoor oriented programs will continue through to a Fall Nature Week, Oct. 20 to 24. Everything from beginning bird watching through involved ecosystem ecology and conservation will receive attention at one or another of the events to be held on the 7,500 acre estate of the Mountain House, New Paltz. Special events have been added this year in recognition of the 10th anniversary of Mountain House in the ownership of the Smiley family.

A birding Weekend from May 8 to 11 is slated as the second event at the height of the migration. Hal and Mary Flanders will detail ecological developments. Special evening programs are scheduled during the holidays.

NATURE WEEK, from June 20 through 28, is a week of intensive activity in all phases of natural history, sufficiently well-rounded to be of equal interest to the beginner and the expert. Leader will be Dr. Allen H. Benton, chairman of the Biology Department of State University College at Fredonia. Dr. Benton is an author, ornithologist and past president of the N.Y.S. Federation of Bird Clubs, and a researcher.

A special event of the Centennial Celebration will be a four-day program on 100 Years of Conservation, from July 28 to Aug. 1. This will feature a variety of speakers and leaders, and will stress Mohonk's long history of far-sighted conservation practices.

Weekend, Sept. 18 to 21, which will be led this year by Lou and Eileen Hand, Alice Jones and Helen Manson. This weekend falls during the hawk migration, and a special trip is planned to the top of the Trapps to watch them as they soar overhead on the thermal currents during their trip south. Ecology will also constitute a large part of this weekend.

A new program is being instituted this year, a Fall Nature Week, from Oct. 20 to 24, under the leadership of B. Bartram Cadbury, who for the last 11 years has been the director of the Maine Audubon Camp. This will be a comprehensive program, touching on all phases of natural history.

A slide show, "The Inside of the Outdoors," showing nature stories behind the scenes is of special interest to groups. There is no charge for this illustrated lecture or for the speaker who accompanies it within a radius of 150 miles of New Paltz. Virginia Smiley, coordinator of nature programs, Mohonk Lake, New Paltz, 12561 may be contacted for further details.

Stamp Show Award Honors Best Booster

KINGSTON A special Sophie Miller Award will be one of the highlights KINSPEXVI, biennial philatelic exhibition of the Stamp-trotters Society of Kingston to be held this weekend at the John A. Coleman Catholic High School.

The award will be presented in memory of Sophie Miller, former columnist with The Kingston Daily Freeman. The Stamp-trotters voted the award after her death in grateful thanks for the many words devoted to philately in her column, Do You Remember. It will be given to the exhibit which in the opinion of the judges is closest to her particular interests — Hudson River, Kingston, Postal History, Space and Covers.

For the first time the exposition will present a special competition on the Europa Study Unit of the American Philatelic Society.

The governments of Liechtenstein, Switzerland, Great Britain, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Australia, Israel, New Zealand and the East Africa Postal Administration will have material available at the exposition. A three-panel display will be exhibited by the European Community Information Service of Washington. Dr. Stewart Ritchie of 97 Fair Street, may be contacted for full details on the submission of exhibit material for the event.

SOPHIE MILLER

Other awards to be given include country, topical, youth; grand award for best in show, gold, silver and bronze in each class.

The Apfelbaum Award, presented through the courtesy of the Earl P.F. Apfelbaum Stamp Company of Philadelphia, will be awarded to the best exhibits submitted on printed pages. The ESU President's Award will be given to the best Europa exhibit through the gift of Meivin Garabrant, president of the Europa Study Unit.

Awards will be presented at the Stamp-trotters annual dinner Saturday 7 p.m. at Arnold's Restaurant, Route 28. Guest speaker for the event will be Col. Herman H. Hale, of Baltimore, president of the German Philatelic Society.

Reservations for the banquet and awards ceremony are available through Dr. Harry McNamara of Hurley.

During the exhibits 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday many well known stamp dealers will have an open house at which all collectors may add to their philatelic interests. Admission to KINSPEX VI is free to everyone. An open invitation is extended to those engaged in social studies in the area schools to see the special interest exhibits of the Europa Study Units.

It is expected to be the largest exposition of its type ever presented in this area.

Saugerties School Rate $124

SAUGERTIES recommended that the State convinced," Dr. Arnold said, in itself, reduce the tax rate by benefits; $28,176 in transportation; $4,033 in unclassified; almost $9."

The 1969 budget for the Saugerties Central Schools has been approved by the Board of Education. The budget totaling $4,496,515.50 will be offset by estimated revenues of $3,078,735 leaving $1,417,780 to be raised locally. Estimating the assessed valuation of the district at $11,408,281 school officials have arrived at an estimated tax rate of $124.27, an increase of $11.04 over last year's rate per $1,000 of assessed valuation. Last year's tax rate was originally estimated to be $123.16 but with a larger cash balance, more state aid, and other revenues than were anticipated, the tax rate was finally settled at $113.23.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, pointed out that interpreted in terms of true valuation, the 1969-70 tax rate will be $17.33, an increase of $1.48 over the present tax rate on true valuation of $15.85.

Another study, conducted by the Central School Study Committee on 48 central school districts in New York State, indicated an average tax rate in 1968 of $18.08. Again, Saugerties is below the average.

Dr. Arnold pointed out that many citizens are curious as to the effect of the recent cuts in state aid to school districts and provided the following estimates for 1969-70: Operating aid will increase from $1,690,276 to $2,081,223; growth aid, from $87,804 to $96,368; building aid, from $324,790 to $330,409; transportation aid, from $201,303 to $204,349; size correction aid from $65,190 to $77,178.

Current budget aid will decrease from $259,001 to $138,093. The total state aid is increased from $2,628,364 in 1968-69 to $2,927,620. Under the new legislation the amount of $97,370 must be deducted from the latter figure, leaving the estimated total state aid at a figure of $2,830,250. The $97,370 is one-eighth of one per cent of the true valuation for 1967.

Another hidden cut in state aid occurred when the operating aid exceeded the ceiling amount of $760 per pupil. The Educational Conference Board had

RHINEBECK'S UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

A Gravesite in Rhinebeck Will Be Historical Point

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

An 18th century conscientious objector will be honored posthumously May 10 in the Village of Rhinebeck.

Freeborn Garretson, 1752-1827, will have his gravesite behind the United Methodist Church established as a historical site by a marker on that date.

The Rev. Prof. Robert Bull of Drew University will dedicate the marker at 10:30 a.m. ceremonies. A 1 p.m. trip to Wildercliff, Garretson's home-site, will follow and Bishop Lloyd C. Wicke of New York will deliver a paper on the itinerant preacher at 2:30 p.m.

A Preacher at 19

The history of this Hudson Valley Methodist minister is one of great individuality and perseverance. Born on the western shore of Maryland in 1752, Garretson became an itinerant preacher at age 19.

In 1772, Bishop Frances Asbury left England, fleeing "the wrath that was to come" in the church. In 1775 Garretson decided to enter the Methodist Episcopal ministry, stating his position as a conscientious objector during the American Revolution by refusing to bear arms. At this same time, Garretson freed all of his family's slaves because of ethical principles.

In 1787 Bishop Asbury appointed Garretson to take 12 young men and travel up the Hudson River from New York City, establishing churches along the way, as modern Paul the Apostles.

Following the large success of this work, Rev. John Wesley of England suggested that Garretson be made a bishop. The New York annual conference did not elect Freeborn, although he was loved and respected, because many of the man's ideas were unconventional and did not agree with the church's teachings.

In 1791, Garretson came to Rhinebeck. He visited Dr. Thomas Tillotson, a former Marylander, preached in the John Brenner house and many others.

Two years later, despite protestations from the Livingstons, Garretson married Catherine Livingston, daughter of Robert and Margaret. It was Robert who has administered the oath of office to George Washington on Wall Street, and the family felt that Catherine was marrying below her station. Catherine was individualistic also, however. She kept a closet full of hand sewn clothes, done by herself, that she gave to poor visiting church men.

In 1794, a daughter Mary was born to the couple in Milan. It was the church in Rhinecliff that was first called a Methodist Episcopal Church, and Mary later gave the lot for this very church.

Mecca for Travelers

Five years later, Freeborn built his home, Wildercliff, near his friend George Buck-ley's in the Morton District of Rhinebeck, overlooking the Hudson River. The home became a mecca for traveling preachers.

Garretson died at the home of his friend George Buckley in New York in 1827, and is buried behind the United Methodist Church in Rhinebeck. The church was burned in 1899, and was rebuilt in 1901.

During his active days Garretson traveled more than 5,000 miles per year on horseback, carriage and stagecoach, preaching his message of scriptural holiness up and down the Atlantic coast from Maryland to New York, through New England and into Nova Scotia. He averaged 500 sermons a year, every day of the week, anywhere a congregation could be gathered together.

Work for Years

The Rev. C. Wesley Christman of Hudson has been working for many years to make the Rhinebeck spot a historical marker. He is president of the Northeast Jurisdiction of the Committee of Archives and History for the United Methodist Church.

"There are no other markers in this area," said Rev. Mr. Christman. "We are going to have a national meeting in Philadelphia next week, and the business of markers will undoubtedly be brought up, but we are very selective in establishing these historical spots officially."

One possible candidate in Lakeville, Conn., is the Lakeville Church, perhaps the oldest church in New England.

The Rev. J. George Hilton of the Rhinebeck church was also instrumental in coordinating the May 10 program.

Pike Will Address the 99s This Saturday

TOWN OF ULSTER will take place on that date from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. John Pike, world renowned artist and illustrator of Woodstock, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Hudson Valley Chapter, Ninety-nines, Inc., of Red Hook, to be held Saturday, May 3 at the Kingston-Ulster Airport on Route 32. Registration for the meeting will be held at the airport.

occupation of Korea and did are in the permanent collection of the USAF Academy at Colorado Springs. In addition to being an artist, teacher and speaker, Pike has an attractive sense of humor.

Bard Exhibits Metal Work of Sculptor Hayes

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON
Work by the sculptor, David Hayes will be presented as the final professional exhibition at Procter Art Center this spring, this week through May 17.

Hayes is an American who has lived near Paris for the past seven years. His reputation, both in this country and abroad, has been based principally on his metal sculpture, forged steel and cast bronze figures. In 1966 he took up ceramics and has executed large reliefs at a factory in Delft, Holland.

He has won many awards in this country, including both a Fulbright and Guggenheim.

The artist has recently worked on jewelry and pendants for the fashion designer Pierre Cardin.

Hayes' show at Bard will stress colored ceramic reliefs, tiled panels, and samples of work in gouache, sculpture, woodcuts and weaving, the latter done with his wife. His recent work is abstract and experimental and shows something of a European sensibility indebted to Miro and Braque.

Langham Seeks Reelection to Onteora Board

WOODSTOCK members. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Harold Snyder has been here less than two years yet there are only three members left on the board who were there when he was appointed.

Cites Experience

Candidate Langham also said: "While we have been extremely fortunate in persuading outstanding citizens to fill these board vacancies, I feel that my experience may be of some value in shaping the decisions for the future."

It is his belief, he says, that the children in the Onteora district are entitled to an outstanding education in this competitive society, and that we have an obligation to provide it to the best of our ability." He stressed, however, that "careful business management and economies in operation should be exercised to the fullest extent by the school system, so that, in the immortal phrase of one of our national politicians, we get 'the most bang for our dollars'."

Langham said he has "always believed and practised" this theory, and "will continue to do so if re-elected."

Seeks Shorter Term

Explaining why he is seeking a shorter rather than a longer term, the OCS board president said: "The pressures of my job, unfortunately, make it impossible for me to commit myself for another five year term."

Instead of making the run for his present seat, he will compete for the one year seat during the May 7 balloting on a school-wide district basis.

Langham, who has been a resident of Woodstock since 1960, is Controller of the Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck. Previous to joining the staff of the hospital, he and his wife operated Special Office Services in Woodstock.

He has also been active in community affairs and apart from his service on the OCS Board of Education, has been both secretary and president of the Woodstock Township Chamber of Commerce, vice-president of the Woodstock PTA, and has held positions in various cultural and civic organizations in Woodstock. He is the father of two children now attending school in the Onteora system.

Kingston High Sets Limit for Applications

KINGSTON While Kingston High School is being swamped with applications for the new three-hour classroom driver safety training course now required by the state of all potential license holders, New Paltz is presently the only other school in the county offering the service to residents.

Onteora and Rondout Valley Schools say they are still waiting approval from the state before they set up classes and Highland has set May 12 as a starting date while Saugerties is to begin May 5, according to County Clerk Albert Spada.

The schools maintain they will "try" holding classes but will only continue if there are enough applicants.

Kingston meanwhile has more applicants than it anticipated and has limited its enrollment to 21 persons per class.

The three-hour course is being held in one session at Kingston with a fee of five dollars being charged although the state allows up to $10. The fee goes to the instructor.

Those who must take the course include all persons who wish to take driver's tests and who have not received a driver training course blue card issued to high school students, also all foreign persons coming to the United States with the exception of Canada and U. S. possessions.

Anyone wishing to take the test may apply to a school and make an appointment.

The classroom instruction stresses the importance of a driver's attitude, skill and knowledge. Among the specific subjects covered are signaling, passing, right of way, turning, defensive driving and emotional factors which influence a driver's efficiency.

Upon completion of the course the license applicant receives a certificate. Should the applicant fail his road test, the certificate is still valid for one year from the date of the completed course.

Spada said he hopes that the schools will inaugurate the courses as soon as possible and be able to continue them. Some driver training instructors have indicated they may be hesitant to teach the course during the summer.

The course requirement, mandated by the state, became effective April 1.

Budget Tightening May See Police-Fire Consolidation in Small Cities

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

KINGSTON
Tightening of municipal budgets around the nation has motivated hundreds of small cities to study consolidation of police and fire departments into single departments of public safety.

cities—27 in the U. S. and 31 in Canada—have some form of consolidated public safety departments. However, more recent figures indicate that nearly 100 small and medium-sized cities now have combined police and fire departments.

The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey in 1960 reported 58 combined departments were outlined in The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey conducted on the subject. These were reported by administrators in cities having police-fire integrated services.

With police-fire service integration, faster and more improved fire and police services were evident. Patrol activity was increased and both police and fire emergency calls were answered quicker. Because of the combined training, the men are more versatile.

Gives Illustration

The public safety director of Oak Park, Mich., a city of 35,000, gave this illustration:

"We had one eight-hour shift that handled two resuscitations, two house fires, a car fire, and an accident which involved two burning cars, four injured persons and a crowd of hundreds on a main highway. Such a situation calls for the best of coordinated efforts. A patrol officer put out one of the car fires with equipment he was carrying. With separate operations he would have had to call there was no question whether they were merely assigned to traffic, transportation of injured, fire-fighting, taking statements, shoveling debris, taking measurements, and all of the various jobs involved in either type of situation. At the same time there was a crew standing by at the station for second alarms.

"We did not worry about how many firemen or policemen we had; we merely assigned men, public safety officers with complete confidence in their ability to do anything they were called to do."

Also, fewer men are required to provide a city's public safety service because department integration makes for full productive use of on-duty time instead of permitting it to be consumed by stand-by duty. Firemen particularly, despite long duty hours, are engaged in waiting time. In studies it was revealed that the total time spent by firemen at a fire or in transit, averages only about one per cent of on-duty time.

Radio communications makes it possible for a man on patrol to reach a fire as quickly and many times more quickly than a man on stand-by at the fire station.

Eliminates Duplication
Duplication is also eliminated. In an integrated department only one central radio bay station served the purpose instead of two. Only one budget is required and also one set of records of personnel is maintained. Operations can be directed from a single headquarters with one office staff.

There is however an initial increased expense. After the integrated department is set up the economies begin. The normal experience of cities with a combined fire and police service is lower cost of operations.

The following savings were noted in cities according to reports of officials: Evanston, Ill., $70,000; Oak Park, Mich., $56,000; Winston-Salem, N.C., $20,000 (in one district); Chicago Heights, Ill., $70,000, and Oakwood, Ohio, $50,000.

With the standard reduction in the length of the work week in municipal departments, department integration is a means of offsetting the resulting loss of manpower. A number of cities adopted integration because of the manpower deficit. Usually when the work week is shortened, additional personnel must be hired to fill the gap.

Department morale is reported higher in cities that integrated departments, according to administrative reports. They attribute this to increased pay, shorter hours, a greater variety of duties, and a feeling by the men that they are providing improved protection. Also, the position of public safety officer is more interesting, challenging and offers higher status and therefore attracts and holds employees.

Integration also improves prevention programs as a result of placing more men on patrol and inspection duties. The public safety officer is in a logical position to perform both fire and crime prevention duties.

The public safety unit provides a strong core around which off-duty men, special deputies and volunteers can be utilized more effectively. This is especially important in the small city that must rely on part-paid and volunteer fire help.

No Opposition
The Public Expenditure Survey reported there is opposition to department integration. Some of the opposition comes from individuals and organizations to which firemen and police belong. In some cases such opposition has succeeded in discrediting the idea before the plan could be installed. The report stated some arguments offered in opposition conflict with actual experiences in cities with integrated services.

The opposing views are listed for evaluation:
The duties of police officer and firefighter are so specialized that one man can not be trained adequately to perform both functions.

Fire apparatus should be manned at all times with enough men to respond to an alarm quickly. If, as under integration, some men are scattered about the city, they may be delayed in reaching the fire scene.

One opposing view notes there would be a smaller total force on duty and a fire or police emergency requiring a large number of public safety officers, would strip the city of one service or the other.

Adverse Affect
In contrast to the advantages, the opposition states that integration has a serious adverse effect upon the morale, discipline and efficiency of the men. They also said that integration is not economical, one of the main advantages cited by the proponents of the plan.

In another opposing view it was noted that fire insurance rates are higher in cities with police-fire integration. In rebuttal to this it was stated that other factors determine the fire insurance rates, such as condition of buildings, availability of water and fire equipment.

The opposition also noted that no community has yet developed a plan that has proven practical and feasible. This is also in direct contrast to reports of cities that have had an excellent experience with integrated departments.

The final opposing view noted that state statutes and local pension plans may prohibit integration. Commenting on this view, it was noted in the survey that those cities now operating under the plan have overcome these obstacles.

convenience of consumer goods, especially in the packaging department.

For as time marches on, the consumer becomes more critical and we hope the manufacturers are listening to her more keenly. Anyone who's ever broken a finger nail trying to open a package that says "to open, press here" knows there is still room for improvement.

Suggestions pour in via letter to National Family Opinion, Inc., a Toledo, Ohio, marketing research firm which claims 90,000 homemaker consultants. Some of their suggestions long since have become a reality — such as making unsalted nuts, peanuts and chips for those on salt free diets.

But many still are in the wishful thinking stage. On that subject of salt, for instance, one homemaker consultant wants to know why most canned soups are so salty.

Other additives to foods disturb women. One asks "why don't they" stop adding onion to prepared food items such as frozen soups and casseroles.

The latest compilation of "why don't they" includes these also.

Why don't they:
Package all salad dressings in wide mouth jars to prevent the wasted dressing that never can be gotten out of the bottom of the bottle.

Manufacture an unscented liquid detergent.

Design some sofas and chairs with the elderly in mind. Most furniture is too close to the floor for them.

Package toothpaste in plastic tubes as they do handcream and shampoo.

Bottle children's aspirin with lids that won't come off for a child's prying fingers or mouth. One housewife wrote that "It took my two-year-old five seconds to bite off a new 'safety' lid."

Wedding Vows Exchanged

Miss Carol Elaine Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. Knapp of 86 Yarmouth Street, Kingston, became the bride of Raymond L. Schaff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. Schaff of 31 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties, on Sunday, April 20 at Fair Street Reformed Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Edwin C. Coon officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. William Rylance, organist, accompanied Mrs. Bernard Pauker who sang traditional wedding selections, gladioli and white pompons decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an organza in the empire style, fashioned with a fitted bodice, long sleeves, and an A-line skirt. The chapel length wattle train featured appliques of wide Alencon lace banding. Her silk illusion veil was shirred to a matching stylized headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, white gladioli and baby's breath tied with white satin ribbon.

Miss Diane Knapp of Kingston was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a sheath style gown of pale pink ottoman, fashioned with a high cowl neckline and mid-length sleeves. The empire waist was encircled by a wide sash with bow detail, and she wore a stylized headpiece in matching color. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and blue carnations and baby's breath, tied with pink satin bow.

MRS. RAYMOND L. SCHAFF

(Lakeside Studio)

Attendants were Mrs. Larry J. DeCicco; the Misses Cheryl Hulsair, Lynne Elder and Helen Brehovsky, all of Kingston. Miss Glenda Knapp of Kingston was junior bridesmaid for her sister. Flower girl was Miss Patricia Schefel, cousin of the bride. Their gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant with the attendants and flower girl wearing blue and the junior bridesmaid in pink.

The attendants carried cascade bouquets of pink carnations and baby's breath tied with blue satin bows. The junior bridesmaid carried a cascade bouquet of blue carnations and baby's breath tied with pink satin ribbon and the flower girl carried a princess basket of pink and blue carnations and baby's breath tied with blue satin ribbon.

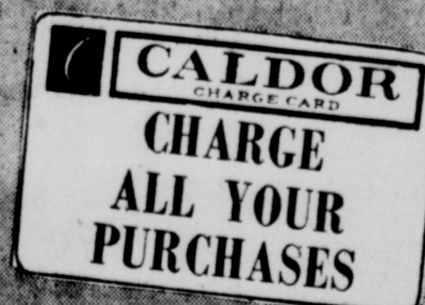

Chester R. Schaff of Saugerties was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gary B. McKenney, Saugerties; Robert C. Rountree, Lake Katrine; Robert Duvernoy, Malden-on-Hudson; Gordon Bradshaw, Saginaw, Mich. Junior usher was Kevin Hotaling of Kingston, cousin of the bride, and ringbearer was Billy Henkel.

After the wedding a reception for 130 guests was held at Capri '400' Restaurant, Port Ewen.

For her wedding trip to San Jose, Calif., the bride selected a green and blue plaid dress and coat ensemble with patent leather accessories and a white hat.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, attended Ulster County Community College, and was employed as a secretary by Hercules Inc., Port Ewen. Her husband, an alumnus of Saugerties High School, served three years with the U.S. Navy, and is employed by IBM, in the Field Engineering Division, Yorktown Heights. The couple will reside at Peekskill.

Mrs. Lambert LeMaire gave an informative lecture, "Thing Worth Fighting For." She asked all clubs to enter Sears Roebuck Beautification Contest. All small projects are acceptable this year and deadline is June 1.

Highlight of afternoon session was lecture-slide program, "All About Roses," presented by Karl Jones, Barrington, Rhode Island, noted horticulturist and rosarian.

Mrs. John McKeever awarded one year subscription to National Gardener Magazine to Community, Woodstock and Clarendon Garden Clubs for having the most members in attendance at the meeting.

Garden Club Plans Flower Show

The Saugerties Society of Little Gardens will present its 45th annual standard flower show on Wednesday, June 4, at the Masonic Hall, Saugerties, from 2:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The show is under the direction of Mrs. John Whitenor, general chairman, and Mrs. Frank Lawless, vice-chairman.

Reaching back into the historically rich past of the local area, the show committee has chosen "Flowers and Folklore" for its theme.

The Artistic Design class titles offer an inviting challenge for exhibitor interpretation, and include "Favors from the 120th Regiment Company G," "The Little Sawyer," "Fulton's Folly," "Rip Van Winkle," "Our First Meeting at the Schoonmaker House, 1924," "Dinner at the Old Post Tavern," "Captain Kidd's Jewels," "A Dutch Market Place," and "Our Heritage." Exhibitors in this division are urged to register early by May 23, due to the limited number of entries for each class.

Junior Division exhibitors in the past have always responded with imagination and this year's overall division title, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," should again whet the creative abilities of this group.

Consultant for the Junior Division is Mrs. Donald Beckert, Saugerties, and classes include: Horticulture—"Ichabod Crane"—An egg shell container with drawing of face with grass growing like hair. Grade K through four.

"Mynheer Van Tassel's Herb Garden"—A dish garden using herbs. Container not to exceed six inches in width or length. Grade five through nine.

Artistic Design — "Brom Bones"—An arrangement using herbs and/or vegetable tops. Grade K through four. "Katrina's Candlestick"—An arrangement in a candle holder with or without a candle. Grade five through nine.

Complete Flower Show schedules will be available May 1 at the Post Office; Saugerties Savings Bank; Saugerties National Bank & Trust Co., Main Street and Simmons Plaza Branch; Savings and Loan Association; The Flower Garden, Overbaugh's Flower Shop and the Bus Terminal, Partition Street.

Of special interest this year is the "Boutique," featuring many handmade articles by club members. Samples are to be displayed prior to the show at the Savings and Loan Association and the Central Hudson Corp.

On display in the Educational and Conservation Division will be exhibits on "Our Polluted Hudson River" and "Saugerties Memorabilia," courtesy of Mandeville Diaz.

ELECTRIC HEAT AND YOU

"WHY ME?"

Because electric house heat is probably going to be the heat you'll use — sooner or later — and why not sooner!

DOES IT WORK?

Only better than any other kind!

And there are about 5,000 users in this area alone to prove it.

HERE'S HOW

1. COMFORT

The first thing you look for in a heating system. Of course, any properly designed system will keep most of the house fairly comfortable — BUT only an electric heating system gives you completely zoned control—every room at exactly the temperature you want, all day, all night.

For example, with a conventional heating system, if your thermostat is on the sunny side of the house in the morning, it will turn off while rooms on the shady side are still too cold. In the afternoon, the thermostat keeps the furnace running while the sunny side is too warm. No single thermostat can keep all rooms in a house at the right temperature all the time. But electric heat — with a thermostat in every room — controlling the temperature in just that room — can keep the comfort level exactly where you want it; the same all over the house — or varied to suit various rooms, at various times.

2. CONVENIENCE

Electric Heat needn't have bulky radiators, or dirt-streaked registers. You don't have to run pipes or ducts all over the house. You can have complete freedom in the placement of furnishings.

And there's no furnace or big fuel tank to take up valuable space. That's more space per dollar for you — more family room, more storage, more closet space.

3. CLEANLINESS

Is an electric light clean? Well, that's how much dirt your electric heating will make. No more film, smudge, smells or soot — and you're doing your part in preventing air pollution, too!

4. QUIET

Some people like to hear the rumble of the furnace. It assures them that it's working — even if they aren't comfortable! Sorry, noise is one thing we can't offer.

5. ECONOMY

Here's a pleasant surprise. For years everybody said, "Sure, electric heat is best, but we can't afford it." Well, there's no reason for you to take our word that electric heat is economical. There are five thousand families in this area who use it. Why not ask one of them? We're betting they'll tell you that heating electrically is not only best — but economical as well.

And don't forget — every time the price of oil goes up — electricity looks like an even better bargain!

6. DEPENDABILITY

What's to break down? There's just about nothing to wear out — no parts to clean and replace. In fact, you'll save considerable money over the years by not having to pay for an annual service contract and repair calls.

Electricity controls every kind of automatic heating system. If the electric service is interrupted the system will stop... no matter what fuel you use!

But with the extra insulation in your electrically heated home, you'll retain heat a lot longer than with an ordinary heating system.

If you'd like to know more about the advantages and economies of electric heat for your home — (existing or planned) give us a call or send in the coupon below.

KINGSTON
Douglas V. Dye, majority leader of the Ulster County Legislature and a candidate for the Republican June primary for county legislature in the Second District, will hold a combination press conference and district meeting Wednesday night from 8 to 9 in Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Dye stated in a press release today that "This will probably be the most important and interesting meeting of the campaign. We will be discussing topics very close to the heart and pocketbook — present and future taxes."

The Town of Kingston legislator states further, "We are fighting a powerful political machine, but we can win with hard work and factual information."

"Some of my recent research has revealed a few enlightening facts about the tax base in your town. You will hear it first!"

Dye said a press conference will be called immediately after the meeting to inform all taxpayers of their burden.

Refreshments will be served.

Kingston Man Named Trustee On Olana Board

ALBANY
Kingston architect George V. Hutton Jr. of Kingston is one of three new board members of the historic site at Hudson.

Appointments to the board of trustees were announced today by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller. Other new members are Bernard Forster of Poestenkill and Thomas J. McCormick of Poughkeepsie. Mrs. William J. Matthews of New York City was reappointed to the board.

Olana is the former residence of the 19th century landscape painter, Frederick E. Church. It contains many of his paintings and reflects his unusual tastes in art and culture. The mansion was the object of intense preservation efforts in recent years.

Fire Destroys Recreation Hall

CRAGSMOOR
A fire early today completely destroyed the 1½ story wooden frame recreation hall at the Cragsmoor Pool, about a mile off Route 62.

Ralph Stedner, chief of Cragsmoor Fire Company said the alarm was sounded about 3:43 a. m. and when the Cragsmoor volunteers arrived at the scene the 24 by 36 foot structure was completely involved in flames.

Chief Stedner said he immediately called Mutual Aid requesting help from Walker Valley Fire Company. He said the origin of the blaze is still undetermined. The pool and recreation hall had not yet opened for the season, and apparently was unoccupied, the chief said.

No Knowledge Of Saugerties Teacher Plan

SAUGERTIES
Robert Brandt, chairman of a Saugerties Jaycee committee that sponsored a public meeting on the 1969-70 Saugerties School District budget on Monday night, said Tuesday that he did not know of any plan by the Saugerties Teachers Association to "embarrass" the superintendent of schools, Dr. Dexter O. Arnold at the meeting.

Brandt said the report indicated that he had knowledge of a plan by the teachers to upset the meeting and said it should have been based on "hearsay."

McLaren School

Perceptual training is offered by the McLaren School in Esopus. This was incorrectly advertised in the Tuesday issue of The Freeman.

Man Arrested On Two Charges After Mishap

WALLKILL
Frank J. Gordek, 43, of Wallkill was arrested by Highland State Police on two charges Tuesday night following a mishap in which his station wagon left 208 and crashed into a house.

Gordek entered innocent pleas on charges of driving while intoxicated and failure to keep right, when he appeared before Shawangunk Town Justice M. J. Oscar Smith, and was released in his own recognizance for appearance on May 16.

Highland Trooper P. A. Koenig said Gordek was proceeding north on Route 208 and making a left turn into Apple Lane, Wallkill when Gordek told troopers that something went wrong with the steering on his car and the vehicle ran off the west side of the highway striking a house.

The owner of the house was not immediately identified.

Indict Mother For Ax Slayings Of 3 Children

SCHOHARIE, N.Y. (AP) — A Schoharie County grand jury has indicted a 25-year-old mother in the hatchet slayings Feb. 23 of her three children.

Supreme Court Judge Harold Koreman, before whom the indictment was handed down Tuesday, ordered Mrs. Glenda Ellen Cooper of the hamlet of Watsonville remanded to the county jail, pending her arraignment next month.

Mrs. Cooper was arrested after the bodies of her children—Jeffrey, 3, Joanna, 5, and James Jr., 8—were found in the ruins of her burned home. They had been hacked to death in bed, authorities said.

Schoharie County Sheriff Claude Van Wie said at the time of the incident that Mrs. Cooper, her wrists slashed, was driven by the intense heat of the blaze to a neighbor's house, where firemen were called.

Van Wie said the mother was accused of setting fire to the house and killing the children before slashing her wrists and laying down.

Health for All

Moving in on an Ancient Menace

There's an upbeat air of excitement nowadays among public health people in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Spurred to action by a tuberculosis case rate that's well above the national average, the Antituberculosis Association of Puerto Rico has joined forces with the commonwealth's health department to launch a task force study of the TB picture throughout the island. Once the study is completed they will be in a better position to organize control measures.

Studies of the TB situation have been carried out in the past, in Puerto Rico as elsewhere. But this one will be different: a self-evaluation by commonwealth people themselves. The task force will be staffed by Puerto Rico's own experts, using its own physicians, nurses, epidemiologists and other health professionals, aided by its own volunteers. And financed, as well, by its own funds. In a sense the project parallels Puerto Rico's famous "operation bootstrap" of some years ago in the industrial field.

The main objective will be to see that all persons affected by tuberculosis in any way—as patients, as persons with TB infection but without the active disease, or as "contacts" in a danger of receiving or spreading the infection—will have needed services available. Another function will be to assess the potentialities for chemoprophylaxis (preventive treatment). This means not just treating the already ill, but finding and dealing with population pockets that are at high risk of disease spread.

In 1967 the TB case rate in Puerto Rico was 44.2 per 100,000 compared to a national rate of 23.1. With new medical and scientific tools and a new spirited effort put forth by the joint task force, the commonwealth's TB picture may look a lot brighter a few years hence.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by the Catskill Region TB and RD Association — 124 Green Street.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened strong today in moderately active trading.

Profit taking may be in order after Tuesday's sharp advance. But reports of progress at the 15th session of the Paris peace conference on Vietnam could set the wheels in motion for another sizeable upswing.

The Viet Cong, in an apparent shift in policy, announced it was ready to begin discussions with "other parties," presumably the South Vietnamese government, in order to get the talks off dead center. On previous occasions the Viet Cong had rejected any suggestion that involved private discussions with the South Vietnamese regime.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI stock market indicator showed a gain of 0.50 per cent. Of the 398 issues on the tape, 221 advanced and 93 declined.

Chemicals showed scattered strength, with aircrafts also on the upswing. Electronics and oils were mixed.

Atlantic Richfield climbed $\frac{3}{4}$ among the oils, while Hess jumped $\frac{1}{4}$. Standard of California dipped $\frac{1}{4}$. Kerr McGee and Pennzoil rose $\frac{1}{4}$ and $\frac{1}{2}$, respectively. Occidental added $\frac{1}{4}$. Du Pont picked up $\frac{1}{4}$ in the chemicals, with Eastman Kodak up $\frac{1}{2}$. Union Carbide held unchanged.

McDonnell Douglas added $\frac{1}{2}$ in the aerospace group, while United rose $\frac{1}{4}$.

Dyson Diners Will Hear Samuels Talk

KINGSTON

Former upstate industrialist Howard Samuels will be the guest speaker at a Kingston "Tribute" to John S. Dyson, former 28th congressional district candidate.

Dyson's office also announced that it expects former Kennedy aide, Theodore Sorenson to make a brief appearance at the dinner to be held Saturday night at 7 at the Walnut Grove, Field Court. A social hour will precede the official function.

Samuels, previously head of the Small Business Administration, was also a candidate, early in the sixties, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Dyson, a lieutenant in the U.S. Army, will leave for duty in Vietnam within the next two months. He has, since his congressional run against GOP Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. last November, been feted at several dinners in Dutchess County.

IBM Dividends

Directors of International Business Machines Corporation on Monday declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of $.80 a share on the common stock, payable June 10, 1969, to holders of record May 8, 1969.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst
Systematic Investment Plan Builds Retirement Security

Q — My aim is to provide additional income for travel when I retire no later than 1977. I am without dependents, my insurance is ample, bank account adequate and I have $3,000 in H Bonds. My holdings are: American Telephone, Continental Oil, Crown Zellerbach, Eastman Kodak, General Motors, Liggett & Myers and Union Pacific preferred. I buy a Freedom Share and E Bond monthly; invest $50 a month through Monthly Investment Plan and accumulate shares of Putnam Equities Fund. I am especially anxious to know your opinion of this fund but will appreciate any comments on my holdings.

A — You have done a remarkable job of building a retirement fund — current value over $40,000 — through a systematic savings program. Others would do well to observe what can be achieved by regular, modest investments, made over an extended period.

At your present rate you will have invested $10,000 in additional capital by 1977. Your investment vehicles tend to be conservative but I gather from your letter that you are more comfortable in this setting.

Putnam Equities, a performance fund, should not be a cause for concern. In 1968 — the first full year reported — the fund outperformed the average by a good margin.

The fund is managed by well-respected and long-established Putnam Management Company. I would continue this quarterly accumulation plan but at retirement would exchange shares — for a small fee — for those of an income-oriented Putnam fund. The formation of Union Pacific Corp., a holding company, will give you the opportunity to exchange your preferred shares for $10 principal amount of a 4 1/2 convertible debenture. The advantages of accepting this exchange are a higher yield and possible growth emanating from the conversion privilege. You are presently achieving a 3.3 per cent return on capital, but at retirement by switching your low-yield issues — Crown Zellerbach and Eastman Kodak — into income stocks, this rate can be increased. With at least 7 more working years, however, these two stocks should be held for their growth characteristics.

ACK, ACK — With Jockey Manuel Ycaza up, thunders across finish line to victory in the Derby Trial at Churchill Downs Tuesday, making him a sure entry for Saturday's Kentucky Derby. Second was Indian Emerald with Fleet Allied third. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Ack, Ack's Fast Time Earns Run for Roses

BULLETIN

Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim, owner of Cain Hoy Stable's Ack Ack, said today the horse would not run in the Kentucky Derby Saturday despite his impressive victory in the Derby Trial.

No reason was given for the move. The colt will be shipped East to race in the Withers Stake next month.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Cain Hoy Stable's Ack Ack smashed the Churchill Downs track record for a mile when he won the $16,050 Derby Trial Stakes Tuesday in 1:34 2-5.

The speedy son of Battle Joined took the lead on the final turn and then streaked through the stretch like a comet to clip 15 of a second from the track standard set by Crozier in the 1961 renewal of the race.

Ack Ack gave owner Harry F. Guggenheim his third victory in this final prep race for Kentucky Derby horses and the triumph was impressive enough so that Guggenheim may now decide to run the horse Saturday in the Kentucky Derby.

Indian Emerald was second seven lengths back with Fleet Allied third. Then came Polar Traffic, Shiek of Bagdad, Rae Jet and Jim's Gold C Last.

Manuel Ycaza, who is scheduled to ride Top Knight in the Kentucky Derby, was aboard Ack Ack. Should Ack Ack challenge Majestic Prince, Arts and Letters and Dike as well as Top Knight five days from now, Carlos H. Marquez is expected to have the mount.

The crowd of about 13,000 backed Ack Ack with confidence and the bay colt paid $2.60 to win and $2.20 to place and show.

Indian Emerald, whose trainer Lou Goldfine had said the colt would have to "win big" to earn a Derby start, paid $3.00 and $2.20. Fleet Allied, who started in the race to get in top shape for the Derby, paid $2.20. Guggenheim first won the Derby Trial back in 1953 with Dark Star, who later upset mighty Native Dancer in the Run for the Roses. Two years later he won with Flying Fury, but Flying Fury finished sixth as Swaps beat Nashua and Summer Tan in that Derby.

Shiek of Bagdad went to the front and set a blistering pace, clicking off the first quarter of a mile in 22 1-5 and a half mile in 45 flat. At that point, Ycaza asked Ack Ack to do a little running. As the field poured around the final turn, Ack Ack easily ran past Indian Emerald to take the lead and he flashed past the three-quarter mark in 1:09. From there on, Ack Ack steadily increased his margin as the field spread out behind him.

'I Couldn't Care Less,' Says Mike

Seattle Suspends Ferraro

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

KINGSTON
"I couldn't care less. As a matter of fact I don't know if I'll ever pick up another glove." That was Mike Ferraro's immediate reaction to wire reports that the Seattle Pilots of the American League had suspended him for refusing to report to the Vancouver, B. C. club of the Pacific Coast League.

Ferraro arrived in Kingston about midnight in good spirits and, according to members of his family, more or less relieved about the whole situation. "He was in a good frame of mind when he landed at Kennedy International," said his father, Pete Ferraro.

"Right now all he wants to do is forget baseball for a couple of weeks and concentrate on some of his personal business." Mike's father declined to speculate if he would try to make a deal for himself with some other major league club. "As of last night, he hadn't made up his mind," he said. "He will be available for comment later today and I think he can give you a real story then."

Under baseball rules, Ferraro's suspension was automatic, but it is known that Mike and the Seattle front office bargained at some length before Ferraro cut off the talks and headed for home.

He was expected to reveal some of the details later today. Meanwhile, in an ironical turn of events, the Pilots started Guy Gil of the Dominican Republic at third base in Tuesday's 1-0 victory over California.

The move marked the first time this season that Rich Derrenbacher accounted for UCCC's final marker in the seventh.

Valle of UCCC was the only player with two hits, both singles. Uster was scheduled to play at Sullivan this afternoon.

Oh, Those LOB's - DiBernardo

Remember, when Onkel Frankie Frisch used to moan, "Oh, those bases on balls!"? Well, it's UCCC Coach Al DiBernardo's turn now. Only his gripe is "left on base, left on base."

DiBernardo watched helplessly, as the Senators left 12 men stranded Tuesday as they went down to a 5-2 defeat at the hands of New Paltz State Frosh Tuesday night at Dietz Stadium.

Mickey Bush limited New Paltz to only three hits, fanned nine and walked nine, but the Hawk yearlings inserted two in the fifth inning when they scored four times.

The Senators got only four hits off Charlie Silverberg but nine walks gave them several scoring opportunities. Silverberg's slow curves fanned nine Senators.

"We had two runners in scoring position on at least four occasions," said DeBernardo, "but again it was the same old story. We couldn't deliver the clutch hit." UCC went ahead 1-0 in the first inning in routine fashion. Ron Valle led off with a walk, stole second and scored on Mike Derrenbacher's single.

New Paltz tied it in the fourth and nailed down the win with a four-run outburst on just two hits in the fifth inning.

A base on balls to McLeod, Schwartz's single and a fielder's choice that went awry loaded the bases with one out. Bush forced in a run by walking Schaeffer. Arconet's single which skipped over first base knocked in two and the fourth scored on an infield out.

Mike Patrick's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded on walks to Bill Boines, Bush and Derrenbacher accounted for UCCC's final marker in the seventh.

Valle of UCCC was the only player with two hits, both singles. Uster was scheduled to play at Sullivan this afternoon.

Canadiens Leading, 2-0

MONTREAL (UPI)—Jean Beliveau set up two goals Tuesday night as the Montreal Canadiens coasted to their second victory of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals with a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues.

The Canadiens lead the series 2-0 with the third game to be played in St. Louis Thursday night.

Beliveau assisted on second period goals by Dick Duff and Yvan Courneyer after Montreal had gone ahead 1-0 in the opening period on a goal by Ralph Backstrom.

Glen Hall, the St. Louis goalie who set a record for most playoff appearances with 104 including his years at Detroit and Chicago, had made a fine stop of J. C. Tremblay before Backstrom picked up the rebound and lifted the puck over the fallen Blues' goalie.

New Paltz, PB Rondout Win

New Paltz High edged Onteora Central, 4-3, Tuesday to rack up its fourth straight UCAL baseball victory without a loss and maintain a one game lead over Pine Bush, 4-2 winners over Highland.

In other action, Rondout Valley trounced Walkkill, 15-3, for its second straight win.

Ray Zappone, the Huguenots' brilliant hurler, raced home from second base on a throwing error in the top of the seventh inning for the New Paltz squeaker over the Indians.

Zappone limited Onteora to five hits, struck out 17 and walked six to get the decision over Ed Mercer, who also yielded five hits, fanned seven and walked three. Zappone also stroked three hits.

Pine Bush kept in pursuit of New Paltz, scoring three runs in the bottom of the first and making them stand up for the crucial victory.

Kevin Kelly unfurled a four-hitter, whiffed four and struck out five to win over Gary Elia, who allowed seven hits.

Rich Alexander was the Pine Bush hitting star and the only player in the game to get two hits. He had a double, drove in a run and scored another.

The Ganders scored four runs in the third and added seven more in the next two frames.

Keith Gorham smashed a two-run homer and Mark Fisher pitched 5-hit ball. George Wallack collected three hits, including a double.

The Ganders are now 2-2, while Walkkill has yet to win in four UCAL starts.

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Another Sarazen entered the athletic field Tuesday when Gene Sarazen, a first baseman-outfielder, was signed by the Cincinnati Reds for their Sioux Falls, S.D. farm club in the Northern League.

Sarazen's uncle, bearing the same name, won the Masters golf championship in 1935.

Pro Football Shift?

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's 26 club owners went into joint session today, leaning toward a proposed plan to shift three National Football League teams to the American Football League as a solution to the thorny problem of realignment.

But while the Shift-Three Plan emerged as the most likely foundation on which accord could be built that left the big question unresolved:

What bricks will come out of the older of pro football's two houses to form the new architecture of the sport in 1970?

The plan to shift three NFL teams, interpreted in some quarters as another triumph for the AFL in these meetings that actually began in mid-March at Palm Springs, Calif., seemed to gain ground in the initial skirmishing Tuesday as the two leagues met separately.

"At this point the AFL seems to be in general accord on three NFL teams moving," explained Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"And the NFL talked about that more than any other plan. It would seem most of the NFL clubs would favor this approach."

Joe Bostic fired a 3-over-par 38 over the Woodstock Country Club layout to score a 3-0 decision over OCS' Howie Gordon, who carded 40, in the No. 1 match.

Werner Kolln posted a 39 to beat John Byoumaster (40) 2½ to ½ in the No. 2 singles. John Sentar of KHS and Scotty Dean each posted 40's to halve the No. 3 match, 1½-1½.

Doug Tatara of Kingston fired a 41 to defeat Tim Barcone, 2-1, in the No. 4 singles.

Albany State Nine Wings Hawks, 5 to 2

New Paltz, now 0-6, scored two in the fourth inning, when Walt Bleyman and Joe DeRosa singled with one out. A walk to Jim Leonardo loaded the bases. Bleyman tallied on Art Frankel's infield out and Zogbey singled home the second run.

Albany moved ahead 1-0 in the first inning and added two runs in each of the sixth and seventh innings.

The Hawks hit the road for a three-game stand this weekend, with a single game at Buffalo State Friday and a doubleheader at Fredonia State Saturday.

Each team collected five hits but the Albany flinger, George Webb, tamed the Hawks in every inning except the fourth when they scored both their runs.

Oscar Kvelland, who went the route for Coach Joe Owens' winless Hawks, yielded a two-run homer to Jim Sandy, the Albany catcher, in the sixth inning.

Pattin Fools Front Office and AL Foes

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

It shouldn't be too surprising that Marty Pattin is fooling rival American League batters this season because he sure fooled Manager Joe Schultz and the Seattle Pilots' front office in the spring.

The Pilots, who acquired the 26-year old right-hander from the California Angels in the expansion draft, had Pattin tabbed as a relief pitcher. But he turned up as their starting pitcher on opening day and has been pitching effectively in that role ever since.

Pattin came within four putouts of pitching the American League's first no-hitter of the season Tuesday and wound up with a two-hitter as the Pilots defeated the Angels 1-0 on Larry Haney's eighth-inning homer. Pattin pitched a no-hitter until Tom Satriano singled with two out in the eighth and allowed only one more hit, a ninth-inning single by Jim Fregosi.

The victory raised Pattin's record to 3-1 for the season and marked his first complete game in the major leagues. He appeared in 52 games for the Angels in 1968 but only four of them were starts and his worst record was 4-4.

The Detroit Tigers scored three runs in the ninth inning to beat the Washington Senators 5-4, the Minnesota Twins whipped the Kansas City Royals 9-1 and on Roger Nelson and three the Boston Red Sox defeated the relief pitchers, Dick Woodson Mike Nagy gained credit for five victories, scored both their runs in the seventh inning on Tony Conigliaro's double, Sid New York Yankees 2-1 in other allowed nine hits but struck out his first major league win with the help of 2-1-3 innings of walk and Tom Tresh's wild

Harmon Killebrew hit the league victory, John Roseboro, hitless relief by Sparky Lyle, throw to first on an attempted eighth grand slam and 401st had four singles and Killebrew, The Red Sox, who dealt Mel double play.

Astros March A Lonely Road

(By Associated Press)

The Houston Astros might have come out of the 1962 expansion draft in worse shape than this year's two new National League clubs, but it's seven years later now and the Astros still appear left out in the cold.

Colder than yesterday's mashed potatoes, the Astros added another loss to their worst record in the league by dropping a 2-1 decision at Atlanta Tuesday night, their seventh consecutive defeat and 14th in the last 15 games. They are 0-12 on the road.

"I think we're better than this," was about all suffering Manager Harry Walker could manage to say after his club fell to a 4-19 record.

Although Montreal dropped a 2-0 verdict to the New York Mets, and San Diego lost to Los Angeles 2-1, the two newest teams in the league had records Houston could envy. The Expos might be last in the East Division, but they have a 7-12 record, while the Padres are fifth ahead of Houston in the West at 9-13.

San Francisco, meanwhile, remained tied with the Dodgers for first place in the West by beating Cincinnati 4-3 in 13 innings and the Chicago Cubs increased their East lead with a 10-0 rout over Philadelphia.

Cold weather postponed St. Louis' game at Pittsburgh.

Ed Kranepool's first two homers of the season—off Jim Grant in the second and sixth innings—gave the Mets, the other 1962 expansion club, their eighth victory in 19 games for a third place tie in the East. Jerry Koosman stopped Montreal on two hits before leaving with one out in the fifth when his arm tightened, and Nolan Ryan completed the shutout, giving four more hits and striking out seven.

Kranepool's homers gave him 53 with the Mets, breaking the club record of 52 set by Frank Thomas from 1962-64.

The Dodgers scored twice in the first against rookie Al Santorini on a walk, an error and singles by Willie Davis and Bill Sudakis, but needed clutch relief work by Pete Mikkelsen and Jim Brewer to save Joe Moeller's victory.

Mikkelsen came in to get out Al Ferrara with the tying run on third and two out in the seventh inning and Brewer pitched out of a first-and-second, none out.

PITCHING—Marty Pattin, Pilots, hurled a no-hitter for 7-2-3 innings and finished with a two-hitter, striking out 11 in pitching Seattle by California 1-0 for his first complete game in the major leagues.

BATTING—Ed Kranepool, Mets, hit his first two homers of the season for the game's only runs as the New York Mets tripped Montreal 2-0.

and then bases loaded, two out jams in the ninth.

Bobby Bonds was the hero in San Francisco's eighth straight victory, drilling a two-run homer in the eighth for a brief 3-2 lead and then rapping a run-scoring single in the 13th with two out.

Cincinnati, losing its fifth in a row, had held a 2-0 lead and then tied the game in the ninth on Bobby Tolan's hit with two out.

That Last-Second Teaser Back Breaker for Lakers

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics had the Los Angeles Lakers talking to themselves to-day after Sam Jones' off-balance shot in the final seconds rolled teasingly around the rim and then dropped through to even their National Basketball Association championship play-off series.

"When the good Lord wants you to win, you win," said a disconsolate Jerry West, whose magnificent 40-point performance wasn't enough to prevent Boston's 89-88 victory.

"A loss like that is hard to take," the Lakers superstar muttered. "I must be a loser — know."

The Lakers have a history of frustration against the Celtics, having lost out to the perennial champions in the NBA finals five times in the last seven years.

This time they jumped off to a 2-0 lead in Los Angeles only to have the Celtics win the next two games at Boston Garden, sending the teams back to the coast all square for Thursday night's fifth game.

The dramatic finish Tuesday night came about after West's consistent brilliance had put the Lakers in command with an 88-87 lead and possession of the ball with some 15 seconds remaining. Emmette Bryant stole the pass-in and fed Jones, who missed a shot. The Celtics got the ball out of bounds, however, and with seven seconds left they set up Jones again for their final chance.

The 35-year-old sharpshooter, who is retiring after this season, stumbled as he shot. The ball rolled around the rim, then dropped in as the record crowd of 15,128 went into near hysteria.

Player-coach Bill Russell said everything went as planned on that final play—in which three men screened for Jones—until the veteran backcourt ace slipped.

"That's the play we called," Russell said. "He wasn't supposed to stumble though. That was his innovation."

Jones thought he had missed the shot, but he had an ace up his sleeve.

"I tried to get it high and get backspin on it," he said. "That way if I missed, I knew Russell had a chance for the rebound."

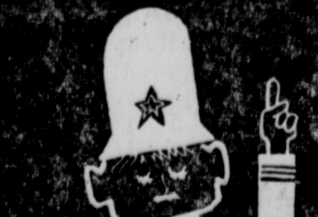

The only trouble with this strategy was that Russell, knowing that the Lakers might commit a foul and wanting his best free throw shooters on the floor, had benched himself for those final seconds and wasn't in the game.

Assign Policemen to Patrol High School in Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Twelve city policemen will patrol the corridors of Central Technical High School today to keep order after a rampage by a gang of youths caused cancellation of classes Tuesday.

School Supt. Dr. Franklin S. Barry said the decision to station the police at the school was made "regretfully" but considered necessary. Police Chief John F. O'Connor said other policemen would be assigned in the general area of Central and other city schools and called in if needed.

The trouble erupted midway through the morning when about 15 Negroes went on a rampage of vandalism, forcing classes to be called off for the remainder of the day. It was the latest of several such incidents in the city's schools in recent months.

Following the incident, the Rev. Forrest Adams, director of the Community Health Organization, called for all black students to boycott all city schools. The CHO is involved in finding employment for blacks.

School officials said the disturbance started in the school auditorium where the students broke windows, light fixtures and seats and then ran through the building harassing other students.

Four were arrested, including three 15-year-olds and one 16-year-old youth, after about 40 policemen were called to the scene to try to restore order as the pupils left the school. Some 200 students, white and black, became involved in the melee before police chief John O'Connor warned the youths over a loudspeaker that they faced arrest if they did not disperse.

Two officers were knocked down when they were attacked by two of the youths arrested. One youth was taken to Upstate Medical Center for treatment of a cut over the left eye.

Several of the black youths went to the United Black Brothers Center at 319 Oakwood Ave., after police cleared the area. The center is run by a militant Negro organization.

Treasury Boss Devests Self Of Bank Stock

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy has sold $1.2 million worth of bank stock which the chairman of the House banking Committee called a conflict of interest.

The Kennedy critic, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., commended Kennedy only for "starting this action to clear up his conflict." Patman said he would not consider the matter closed until other stock held in trust is sold.

Patman quizzed Kennedy April 17 on his interest in Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. When Kennedy did not reply, Patman told newsmen, "he ought either to get out as Secretary of the Treasury or comply with the law."

Kennedy was the $200,000 a year president of Continental before he was named to the Cabinet. His disclosure of the stock sale came Tuesday in a letter to Patman from Treasury's general counsel, Paul W. Eggers.

"I have made a thorough investigation of these charges and I find that they are erroneous both as to the facts alleged and as to the conclusions drawn," Eggers wrote.

Eggers said Kennedy had sold his 30,855 shares of the bank stock within a few days of obtaining it through an option. A Treasury spokesman did not give the date but said this sale was before Patman made the conflict of interest charge. Patman alleged Kennedy would be "wearing two hats" while testifying on banking bills if he owned the Continental Illinois shares.

The letter also said Kennedy and his wife placed in trust 7,846 shares of stock in the Conill Corp., the one-bank holding company to which ownership of Continental Illinois has been transferred.

"Mr. Kennedy stated that he had no knowledge from the trustee and no communication with the trustee as to the status of the stock transferred in trust," the Eggers letter said.

Eggers said Kennedy also took the cash value of 3,200 bank shares due him under a bank profit-sharing plan.

Rowan Calls Rioting Blacks As 'Cop-outs'

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Carl T. Rowan, the past director of the U.S. Information Agency and former ambassador to Finland, described black students seeking separate campus facilities as "cop-outs" from society.

Speaking at Canisius College Tuesday night, Rowan, a Negro, said the students would rather "get together and curse whiteness" instead of compete.

He dismissed the idea of racial segregation as merely "junk" and said direct competition was the best way for Negroes to develop self-esteem in society.

Introducing a Used Car Guarantee It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we-pay-half-you-pay-half" deals.

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade-in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles.

What kind of cars get our guarantees? All kinds. Chevys, Fords, Ramblers, VWs. (We get all kinds of trade-ins for new Volkswagens.)

So. The next time somebody tries to sell you a used car that's "just like new," ask about the guarantee. Then remember us.

No, our used cars aren't "just like new." No used car can be. But no used cars could be in better shape, either.

Dear Abby

Mom Taxes Her Love

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My mother is a widow in her early seventies who has been "dying" for the past 25 years. She keeps praying to die, and says she "knows" she will not live much longer. The doctors tell me there is nothing wrong with her. It is very depressing to be around her. I want to be a loyal daughter, but I am so tired of hearing her say that she is praying to die, when there are so many people who are children to stay alive.

The biggest problem is that Marriage, at its best, has many demands so much of my problems, but a mixed time. I am married and have marriage poses even more. This my own family, Abby, and I is not to say that all such just can't run over there and marriages are doomed to fail, spend every day with her. I But in a mixed marriage, the feel guilty if I don't see her percentages are always against every single day. I have three the house divided.

DEAR ABBY: "FED UP IN TIED TO MOM BARTLESVILLE" objected to her "praying to die" story for the center of attraction while 25 years, you should be used an adult party is going on. How to it by now. You should also about guests who are called realize that she probably upon to entertain the DOG? doesn't mean it, and she could. Regardless of who is visiting, be a little sick. Handle her as this mutt lays a rubber ball you would a demanding child, at the guest's feet and barks. Be compassionate and patient, until the guest throws the ball but firm. Give her what time to be retrieved. This of course you can, and don't feel guilty stops any meaningful adult about the rest. Your problem conversation.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

HAIRY ARMS: (Q) I have a lot of hair on my arms. It bugs me. I wear long sleeves often. I would cut the stuff off but it would just come back stiffer and longer.—G. in Spokane, Wash.

(A) Never cut or shave the hair on your arms. If it is dark, bleaching it will help. Removal is a big and not always satisfactory. If you decide this is the only way, visit a good dermatologist and let him advise you.

You are correct to wear sleeves as much as possible. This is the most practical way for most girls.

TEEN-AGE DRUDGE: (Q) Yesterday at school they told us the date of the junior prom. So I told my father I had to get a job to earn money for the stuff I need for the dance. I'm a boy, 16.

He said I couldn't get a job. He said he wasn't fixing to pay money out to bring in a baby-sitter. You see when I get home from school each day I have to clean, cook, and wash the clothes. My mom works.

My father thinks my $3-a-week allowance is good pay for the work I do and more than enough to pay all my expenses. He says I do a lousy job.

He doesn't think I should go to the school dances on Friday nights. The last time I asked he said the only reason I wanted to go is because I'm a dope.

Now he's complaining about my long hair and threatening to shave my head. I'm trying to make up my mind to quit school, go into the Army, and write him a long letter telling him goodbye.—Teen-Age Prisoner in Philadelphia.

(A) Working parents should not expect a school-age daughter or son to run the house. And they should not expect baby-sitting so constant that it prohibits some social activity.

If a mother wants to or has to work, someone should be hired to do part of the work at home. Granted, the children should help—but they should not be expected to carry the parental responsibility.

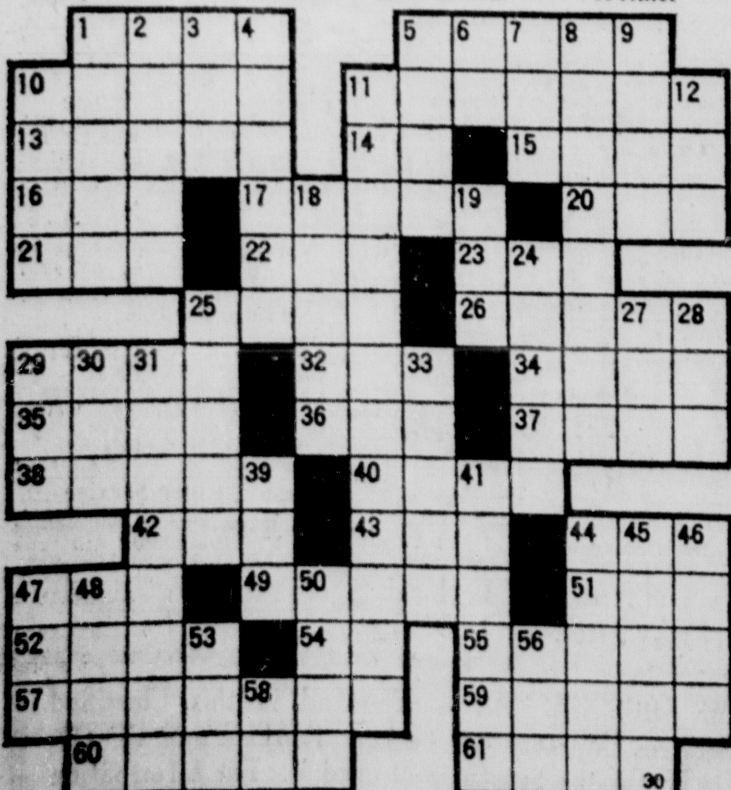

Do not run away. Keep trying to reason with your parents.

Your father may have to try to realize it, but if he will let you have a couple of extra dollars now and then, plus time and opportunity to have some fun on your own, you will be a better worker and more help at home.

DEAR ABBY: Why do parents teach their children that we are all "brothers," and therefore should not judge another by his race, color, or the church he goes to. But when their own son or daughter gets serious with someone of another race, religion or color, they wring their hands and say, "You are breaking our hearts."

MADISON, Wis. DEAR MADISON: Good question. All parents want their children to have the greatest possible happiness in life. DEAR MADISON: Good question. All parents want their children to have the greatest possible happiness in life.

Pompidou Clear Favorite To Succeed De Gaulle

PARIS (UPI)—Former President Georges Pompidou, who was the clear favorite today to succeed Charles de Gaulle as president of France.

Advocating a "moderate style" campaign because he does "not want to be elected by a single party but by a majority," Pompidou gained a quick and powerful endorsement from the ruling Gaullist party. Scores of similar pledges of support flooded in only hours after Pompidou, 57, announced he would try to succeed De Gaulle. "Pompidou for President" committees sprang up like the country's mushroom crop.

Other early candidates ran into problems, though. The only announced contender beside Pompidou, Gaston Defferre, the socialist mayor of Marseille, could not win support from Socialist party leader Guy Mollet. Mollet said Defferre's name would be put forward along with others when the party decided on its candidate Sunday.

The Communists said they would not support Defferre, and their national assembly floor leader called for a candidate endorsed by all left-wing parties. The man who replaced De Gaulle as acting president, Alain Pöher, was regarded as the leading Centrist possibility but he indicated he was in no hurry to announce his candidacy. Pöher stepped in as interim leader in his role as president of the French senate when De Gaulle resigned Monday.

In a surprise move, the Communist-led General Conference of Labor announced Tuesday night it has called off traditional May Day workers' parades in Paris Thursday. It said the cancellation was forced by an alleged Gaullist plot to turn the celebration into riots. A parade in Lyons was cancelled for similar reasons.

Dyson Gets Appointment On Rural Affairs Committee

NEW YORK

John S. Dyson, 1968 Democratic candidate for Congress in the 28th congressional district has been appointed chairman of the Rural Affairs Task Force of the Advisory Council on Community and Public Affairs. It was announced today by Arthur J. Goldberg, council chairman. The Rural Affairs Task Force is one of approximately 13 task forces Justice Goldberg will appoint to look into the crucial issues and problems facing New York State. Position papers will be issued periodically and they will constitute a party platform which Goldberg has termed "An Agenda for the State."

Dyson plans to concentrate on agricultural problems and regional planning and will hold a series of meetings across the state in the next few weeks. He will seek out the advice and counsel of experts in these fields. A lieutenant in the U. S. Army, he is scheduled for a tour of duty in Vietnam in June.

Dyson, 26, is a graduate of Cornell University where he majored in agricultural economics and he holds a master degree from the Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton, N. J. He testified at the 1968 platform hearings of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago and proposed a model rural regions program, which in effect is a model cities approach to rural America.

Dyson owns a farm in Millbrook, and is currently writing a book on rural problems.

From 3 to 6 p. m. there will be informal workshop discussions on several topics including community newspapers, draft counseling, community action, student rights and Vietnam.

All residents of the Mid-Hudson region are invited to attend the day-long Assembly. There will be a registration to defray expenses. Babysitting will be provided.

Cornell Prof Denies Ford View on the ABM

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Cornell University Nobel Prize winner who opposes President Nixon's Sentinel Antiballistic Missile System denied Tuesday a charge by House Republican Leader Gerald Ford that ABM opponents favor unilateral disarmament.

Hans Bethe, here to attend a meeting of the American Physical Society, said, "I definitely do not believe in unilateral disarmament." Ford had made the charge earlier in the day after meeting with Nixon.

Bethe was one of four scientists who outlined, at a news conference their arguments they would give later, pro and con, about the Sentinel. He said he was against the Sentinel because it was not likely to eliminate casualties from a Chinese nuclear attack because the Chinese could develop aids to penetrate its defenses.

Bethe, Nobel Prize winner for physics in 1967, was one of the scientists who came to the defense of Dr. Franklin A. Long of Cornell when Nixon reportedly withdrew his offer to appoint Long head of the National Science Foundation. Bethe and Long indicated that the job offer was taken back because Long opposed the ABM.

"The job really ought to be entirely non-political," Bethe said at that time. "I really cannot see how the President's advisors could not see that."

Other physicists at the new conference were Eugene P. Wigner of Princeton University, George W. Rathjens of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Donald G. Brennan of the Hudson Institute. Wigner said that ABM, plus civil defense, could reduce U.S. casualties from a Soviet attack. Additionally, he said, it would weaken the hand of the "warminded" within the Soviet Union. He said the Russians would not step up the arms race because they would not consider an ABM an offensive weapon.

Rathjens said that to stage a successful "first strike," knocking out the U.S. power to retaliate, Russia would have simultaneously to knock out U.S. land-based missiles, submarine Polaris submarines and manned bombers. The chances of the Soviets doing this, he said, are "almost infinitesimal."

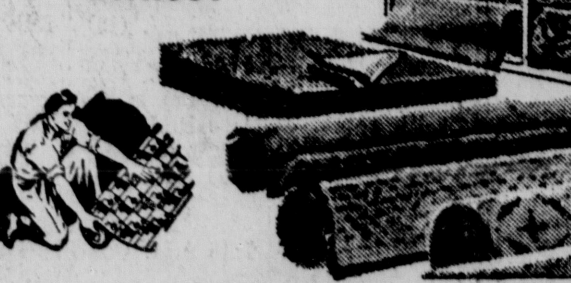

But Brennan said he would favor an even larger ABM because in the last five years technology of nuclear defense has been overtaking that of nuclear offense.
